British Raid Nazi Bases; Germans Pound at England

Match Blow for Blow As Enemy Rains Aerial Bombs on England

London—(P)—Britain claimed the upper-hand over Nazi air-raiders today and declared that her fliers were matching blow for blow as waves of German planes still poured over England.

Several persons were believed to have been killed and some damage was caused in towns of northeast, southeast and southwest England as the Germans continued the air forays from which the British have had but one day of respite since June 18.

A home security ministry communique said R.A.F. planes brought down three of the German raiders. One of the forays, on a southwest town, was made by a "gliding" bomber which flew several miles with its engines shut off and arrived over the town unharmed.

New information added an entire family of five to the toll of dead in a western England town last night. All were killed by one bomb. Four other families, taking shelter indoors, were buried under their caves-in homes when bombs fell in the heart of a residential area.

But the air ministry said Royal Air Force planes, in daylight raids yesterday on Germany, shot down a Messerschmitt fighter in flames and wrecked a big four-engined airplane on the ground.

Other Damage
Besides destroying the big German plane in a raid on Eschwege, the air ministry said, British fliers scored a direct hit on a runway and are believed to have caused "extensive damage" to grounded planes.

Attacked by five Messerschmitts, it added, a British bomber raiding German-occupied northern France shot down one in a burst of gunfire and escaped to sea.

German assertions of British losses in the air battle over the British channel yesterday were scoffed at in authoritative circles as "just another case of Nazi multiplication by 10."

(The Nazi high command communique reported 10 British air losses to 3 for Germany yesterday.)

"Against a German loss of three fighters and a bomber, British losses were, in fact, one only—the second fighter machine lost in the defense of Britain since the war began," these sources retorted.

The "bag" of German planes attacking the British Isles, they added, "is 112 machines certain" and possibly 25 others damaged so badly they are believed never to have reached home.

Nazis Await Word
Berlin—(P)—Heavy new blows to British seapower were reported by the high command today as, once again, Germany awaited the word of one man—Adolf Hitler—for the next phase of the European war.

The sinking of 21,500 tons of British shipping off the Spanish coast, including the 13,000-ton "armored" British steamer San-Fernando, was credited to U-boats.

Airplanes were said to have sunk two merchant ships and a transport and damaged others off the south coast of England.

In England, the communique added, "the air force raided, among other things, a railway station at Brighton, coast batteries on the Isle of Wight, port facilities and camps at Falmouth Wells and armament plants at Middleborough and Newcastle."

When the fuhrer will give the word for the new war phase, and what it will be, even men usually in the know can not say. But they are confident that whatever happens, Hitler and Italian Premier Mussolini will be in full harmony.

Hitler and Italian Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano conferred secretly for two hours here yesterday and arranged another conference for Wednesday, presumably intended to coordinate Rome-Berlin policies for re-shaping Europe.

Destroyer Safe in European Waters

Washington—(P)—The United States destroyer Barry was reported safely at anchor today in European waters, while federal agents tried to run down the author of a mysterious message saying she had been "hit by German submarine."

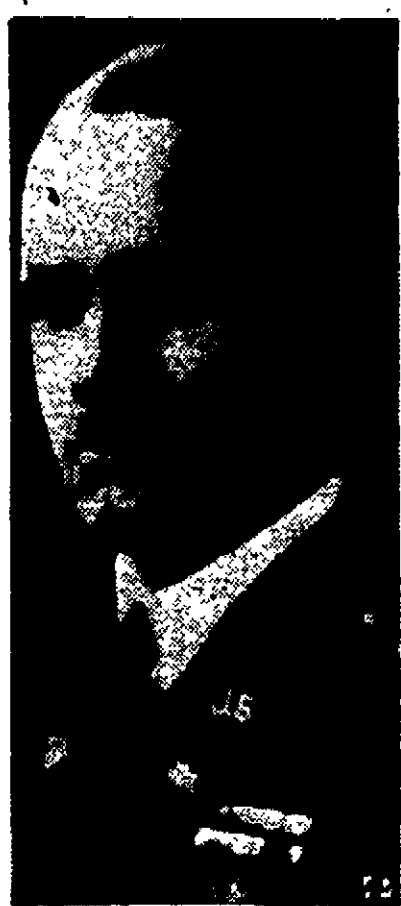

An S O S in the Barry's name was picked up by Mackay Radio Sunday, and caused two-hours' anxiety in government quarters before the navy was able to announce:

"The navy has received a communication directly from the Barry and she is not in distress. She is peacefully at anchor."

Hermit Cannot Bring Bride Into His Cave

Omaha, Neb.—(P)—"Dynamite Pete" Everett's romance with Mrs. Myrtle Mason, 41, who wanted to live in his hermit's dugout, is off. "It's all off, and that's all there is to it," she said. "The law won't let him keep a woman in a cave."

The 80-year-old hermit, who planned to meet Mrs. Mason for the first time Sunday after a correspondence romance, wrote that health authorities told him his dugout home on Pawnee creek near South Bend, Neb., is no fit place for a bride.

Stimson, Knox Names Up for Senate Action

Leaders See Approval After Opponents Give Voice to Objections

Washington—(P)—Henry L. Stimson and Frank Knox, nominated for secretary of war and of the navy respectively, were up for senate confirmation today, with leaders confident that approval would be forthcoming after opponents had voiced their objections.

The nominations of the two Republicans, approved last week by senate military and naval committees, were the chief business on a congressional calendar stripped of non-essentials in anticipation of a recess during the Democratic national convention next week.

Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.) opposed senate confirmation of Stimson today because, he said, Stimson favored policies that "would bring this war to our country."

He took the floor after Senator Sheppard (D-Texas) had urged confirmation on the ground that Stimson's appointment was "notice to the world" of American unity.

Vandenberg criticized a speech made by Stimson, "just 24 hours before his appointment as secretary of war," urging that naval bases of the United States be made available to the British navy. Vandenberg said Stimson had been "unable to clear this up as far as I am concerned."

"This might invite, if not precipitate, our actual participation in the European war," Vandenberg added. Senate leaders hoped for a vote on Stimson and Knox by tomorrow night and planned to transact little other business this week.

It was considered possible, however, that the chamber might act on the $4,000,000 fleet expansion bill. It already has passed the house, and little senate opposition is expected.

Roosevelt Message
President Roosevelt will send Congress during the week a special message asking a supplemental $5,000,000 defense program, and there was talk that a new billion-dollar-a-year tax bill would be necessary to finance it. Leaders said these matters would be put aside until after the Democratic convention.

The administration's general foreign policy was involved in the nominations of the two men, advocates of aid to the allies. Senators Wheeler (D-Mont.), Holt (D-W. Va.) and Bone (D-Wash.), among others, prepared speeches depicting the appointments as a sign that President Roosevelt wants to have a hand in European affairs.

Republicans generally remained silent on the appointments. In the house, leaders agreed to take up tomorrow the senate-approved bill extending the Hatch anti-politics act to state employees paid partly by federal funds. Only federal workers now are affected.

Marine Colonel Denies Jap Charge
Shanghai—(P)—A Japanese accusation that United States marines had mistreated 15 Japanese plainclothes gendarmes arrested in the Shanghai defense area brought a prompt reply, "it's a lie," from Colonel Dewitt Peck, marine commander in the area, today.

A Japanese army spokesman asserted the gendarmes were humiliated, clubbed and otherwise mistreated. This constituted a "grave insult to the Japanese army," he said, and "Japanese military authorities will file a strong protest with the American authorities over this case."

Colonel Peck, denying the charges, also classed as "a lie" any report that marines had pointed loaded rifles at the gendarmes. He said the settlement police had informed the marines that armed civilians were in the defense sector, and had asked for guards against possible terrorist outrages.

In every case where Japanese were arrested, he added, they were pointed out by settlement police, but were taken into custody and disarmed by the marines.

After the gendarmes had been arrested one was allowed to telephone his headquarters and two Japanese officers came to marine headquarters and discussed the case. Colonel Peck explained, then Major General Saburo Murra, commander of the Japanese gendarmes, called on Colonel Peck and apologized, after which the gendarmes were released.

Defendant Faints As Judge Prepares to Pronounce Sentence
Waupaca—As Judge H. J. Severson was about to pronounce sentence Saturday on Walter Brockhaus, Wisconsin Veterans' Home, after he had pleaded guilty to manslaughter, Brockhaus fainted and had to be carried from the courtroom by Sheriff D. R. Campbell. Sentence will be pronounced later.

Brockhaus was the driver of a car which crashed into a telephone pole the night of April 13 and instantly killed two of his passengers, Mrs. Mildred Bidson, Milwaukee, and Carl MacMacken, Milwaukee, Wisconsin Veterans' Home. Mrs. Brockhaus was seriously injured. Since that time Brockhaus has been confined to the county jail.

Roosevelt Tells Farley About 3rd Term Stand

Public Still Awaits Answer to Question; Experts Think F. D. R. Will Accept 'Draft'

Washington—(P)—President Roosevelt shared with James Farley today the secret of his third-term intentions—but neither would reveal the chief executive's answer to the most baffling political question in a decade.

The rest of the nation may be let in on the solution of the third-term puzzle when—and if—the Democratic national convention insists on drafting Mr. Roosevelt.

Political analysts suggested that since Mr. Roosevelt had let the third-term movement go along until a week before the convention without lifting a finger either to check or increase its momentum he would be unlikely to turn down renomination if it were offered in the form of a call to service during a time of international crisis and efforts to plug in gaps in America's defenses.

Lending emphasis to predictions of some Democratic leaders that the convention would draft the chief executive was the fact that 773 votes were pledged or semi-pledged to Mr. Roosevelt with only the Canal Zone delegation to be heard from. Necessary to nominate: 548 votes.

Farley, the national Democratic chairman, found out what the president proposes to do when the two laid their political cards on the desk in Mr. Roosevelt's library at Hyde Park, N. Y. yesterday.

They talked about the approaching convention, the Democratic platform, and the third-term issue.

"I had a very satisfactory talk with the president," Farley said afterward, "and I have full knowledge of his thoughts and what he has in mind."

But any announcement on the third term, or any discussion of the time or place for the announcement, must come from the president, he asserted.

He parried questions designed to draw him out on the possibility that he might give up his jobs as Democratic chairman and postmaster general and acquire an interest in the New York Yankee baseball team.

He would not answer an inquiry whether his name still would be submitted to the convention. Farley has been listed frequently as a third-term opponent.

9 Persons are Killed In Weekend Accidents

Nine persons lost their lives, two in Winnebago county, in Wisconsin weekend accidents. This brought the toll of deaths by violence over the long July 4 holiday period to 17. Eight previously had been reported. Two persons were injured in traffic accidents in Outagamie county over the weekend.

Edward Bryan, 21, Chicago, and George Lenz, 21, route 1, Pickett, were killed in traffic accidents in Winnebago county Sunday.

Bryan was riding in a car driven by Lowell Solberg, 19, of Chicago, when it collided with a junk truck owned by Ferdinand Werth, route 1, Dale, on Highway 110, a mile west of Winchester. Both cars were going east. Bryan and Solberg were taken to the Community hospital at New London, Bryan dying on the way from a multiple skull fracture.

Dr. G. A. Steele, Winnebago county coroner, said that Solberg received head injuries and a possible concussion and that his condition is serious. No one in the truck was injured, county police said.

Returning Home
The Chicago party was returning home from Chain O'Lakes at Waupaca, leaving Waupaca about 5:30. The accident occurred at the base of the hill west of Winchester. Part of the load on the junk truck was spilled onto the highway.

A coroner's jury viewed the scene of the accident and will hold an inquest when Solberg is released from the hospital. The jury members are Melvin Amunson, Frank Kempinger, Leonard Larsen, William C. Bullitt, ambassador to France, remains near the seat of the French government. Hull said last week he wanted Bullitt to stay there for the present.

Believe Prien's U-Boat Torpedoed Prison Ship
London—(P)—London naval circles said tonight they had information that Lieutenant-Captain Guenther Prien, whose U-boat last October penetrated Scapa Flow and sank the battleship Royal Oak, commanded the submarine that sank the British prison ship Arandora Star last week off Ireland.

Store Messenger Is Held Up at Madison

Madison—(P)—William Hansen, employee of Barton Brothers department store, was held up on Capitol square at noon today by a bold gunman who escaped with $1,127 in cash and $4,000 in checks which Hansen was taking to the First National bank.

The messenger told Detective Captain John R. Arnold he had just stepped off the curb at the intersection of Wisconsin avenue and Mifflin street when the robber jammed what felt like a gun into his back and said:

"This is a stickup. Keep on walking."

Until three weeks ago the store's bank messenger had been furnished with a police escort.

Bund Head Raps Proposed Law

Registration Would Force Organization To Disband, He Says

Washington—(P)—Wilhelm Kunze, national leader of the German-American Bund, protested today against proposed legislation requiring registration of foreign-controlled organizations on the grounds that it would force the bund out of existence.

Although denying vigorously that his organization was controlled by Nazi Germany or that it had any secret purpose to overthrow the United States government, Kunze told a senate judiciary subcommittee that no one would dare be an officer of the bund if the bill were enacted.

"It would be impossible to comply with it," he declared. "Not a single person would have the courage to be an officer of our organization because the slightest mistake in registration would subject him to heavy fines and long imprisonment."

Kunze, a New Yorker who took over the bund leadership when Fritz Kuhn went to prison on conviction of mishandling bund funds, appeared before the subcommittee at his own request to protest against the house-approved legislation.

Senator Connally (D-Texas) brought out that Kunze himself was now under $1,000-bond on a charge of sponsoring a "hated" meeting on Independence day at Camp Nordland, New Jersey.

Wilbur Keegan, attorney for Kunze, leaned over to advise him that Connally's discussion on this point was irrelevant, but the senator interrupted sharply:

"We're running this hearing."

4 Iron Guardists Resign Positions

Bucharest—(P)—The collapse of Premier Ion Gurgutu's five-day-old pro-German cabinet appeared possible late today following the resignation of four Iron Guard members.

Iron Guardists said the ministers resigned because the party wishes to have a cabinet composed solely of the Iron Guard.

Gurgutu either may fill the vacant posts with other right extremists, or, more likely himself resign, leaving the way open for an Iron Guard government.

Some political quarters held it likely Gurgutu's successor may be General Ion Antonescu, Iron Guardist who was war minister in the anti-Semitic, pro-Nazi Cvetan Goga cabinet and a close friend of Corneliu Codreanu, slain founder of the Iron Guard.

The ministers who resigned were Horia Sima, leader of the Iron Guard and minister of culture; Dr. Vasile Novaceanu, minister of public domain; Dr. Ion Simonescu, undersecretary of health and Petre Neamtoianu, undersecretary of agriculture.

Roosevelt Backs Hull's Stand On Talk of 'Monroe Doctrines'

Washington—(P)—President Roosevelt was aligned today with Secretary Hull in contending that there is a difference between "Monroe doctrines under the name only" and "the true Monroe doctrine as we know it and have it."

Following German and Japanese discussion of "a Monroe doctrine for Europe" and "a Monroe doctrine for Asia," Stephen Early, White House secretary, said yesterday at Hyde Park:

"There hasn't been any sign of evidence of a real or true Monroe doctrine in other hemispheres than our own yet."

Secretary Hull had declared on Friday that the Monroe doctrine does not resemble policies in other areas which, he said, though alleged to be similar, "would in reality seem to be only the pretext for the carrying of conquest by the sword."

Over 30 in Mexico City Lose Lives

Mexico City—(P)—Two American students were gravely wounded in armed clashes which took between 50 and 100 lives at yesterday's presidential elections. Reports of widespread irregularities threatened to complicate the task of determining the result of the election. Votes will not be canvassed until Thursday and official announcement of the result will come from congress next September.

Americans injured are Edward J. Mallen, Jr., of Franni, Wyo., and Leonard Durso, 18-year-old Georgetown university student of Union City, N. J.

An unofficial count showed at least thirty persons were killed in Mexico City alone, while scores—perhaps hundreds—were reported wounded during pitched battles which surged through the streets.

Some reports from provinces indicated that the total injured might be in the thousands.

Both Claim Victory

General Manuel Avila Camacho, administration candidate, and his independent rival, General Juan Andreu Almazan, both issued statements claiming overwhelming victory.

Hospital authorities said Mallen, who received a pistol wound in the stomach, and Durso, who was struck in the left side by a rifle bullet, had improved slightly during the night, but they were described as still "very ill."

Ivan Hasslocher, son of Paulo Hasslocher, commercial attache of the Brazilian embassy in Washington, and one of the three Georgetown undergraduates who was with Durso when he was wounded, suffered a slight flesh wound from a ricocheting bullet.

Parkman Clancey of Tacoma, Park, Md., and Francis E. Maloney, Jr., Washington, D. C., were grazed by bullets that cut their clothing.

The Georgetown students all had been studying at the summer session of Mexico's national university here. Mallen, formerly a resident of Davenport, Iowa, was a summer student at a business college in the capital.

Tried to Evade Crowd
The United States consulate, on the basis of statements taken from the youths, said that Durso, Hasslocher, Clancey and Maloney were walking down the Avenida Juarez when they saw a large crowd coming toward them.

They started to cross the street to avoid the crowd when there was a round of firing and the mob broke and ran.

The four joined a crowd racing up a side street. Police at the other end of the street opened fire and Durso was shot before he could dodge into a doorway.

Motorcycle police began moving through the street, firing at persons still running or huddled in doorways. Hasslocher suffered a minor wound in the back, while another bullet tore through Maloney's sweater as he crouched in an entranceway.

The officer who fired the shot was said to have been taking aim to fire again when a small Mexican boy shouted out in Spanish "he's a tourist." Maloney raised his hands and walked out and the officer did not molest him.

Grazed by Bullets
Clancey also was grazed by a bullet from the gun of an officer who took a snapshot shot at him.

Mallen was unable to give a statement because of his condition. The government made no comment about the outcome of the election, but deplored "bloody incidents," commented significantly on reports of election law violations and said they would be punished.

Complaints poured in from all over the nation that Almazan's supporters had been denied the right to vote, and fear was expressed in some quarters that the final tabulation of ballots might be accompanied by further disorders.

Government officials expressed confidence, however, there would be no further trouble.

There were no official estimates on the number of casualties, and unofficial figures varied greatly. General Almazan said his reports indicated that "100 or more" lives had been lost; other estimates placed the figure in the region of 50.

Mexico City itself was the scene of the worst rioting.

Violent disorders broke out before the polls opened at 9 a. m., and by mid-day battles were raging in a half-dozen different sections of the city, with police and soldiers resorting to firearms in an attempt to end the fighting.

Chiang Claims Army Now 5,000,000 Men

New York—(P)—Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek was quoted by the British Broadcasting Corporation today as saying that "the Chinese army fighting the Japanese invasion has now reached a total of 5,000,000 men."

The broadcast, picked up here by the National Broadcasting company, said the war chief estimated total Japanese dead at 600,000.

U. S. in Grave Danger, Former Governor Says

Overproduction Is Not Issue But Jobs for All Necessary, He Asserts

Chicago—(AP)—"Our country is in danger—terrible danger—not alone from abroad but at home," former Governor Philip F. LaFollette of Wisconsin asserted in a radio address yesterday.

He warned that "the same dry rot that wrecked Britain and France is here and the same Chamberlains," and declared that "for 20 years our leaders—Republicans as well as Democrats—have failed to tell us the truth."

"They have preached false doctrines and adopted bad policies," he said. "Year after year our leaders have told us everything was all right, when down deep something was all wrong."

"Modern war is total war. . . . A nation that delays putting its house in order until after it is attacked is whipped before it starts."

"We cannot buy national defense. We shall have to sweat and toil for it. That is why the first step in national defense is to correct the fundamental error—shared by Republicans and Democrats alike—the mistaken idea that we have been suffering from overproduction."

Must Provide Jobs

Asserting that "the old economic system cannot put the men and the resources of the nation to work," LaFollette said that "the issue before the nation is more important than any economic theory" and "upon what we do and when we do it, will depend whether freedom shall perish from this earth."

He added: "There is no escape from these propositions:

"First: No nation is rich enough to maintain one out of every four or five of its population in enforced idleness.

"Second: No nation is so poor it cannot provide its men and women with an opportunity for productive work.

"Third: If the existing economic and financial system will not put people to work and enable them to stay at work, then that system has to be changed. The primary task of any economic system is to provide work. When it cannot do that nothing can save it."

State Head of WPA in Office

Mark Muth, Formerly Green Bay District Chief, Begins Duties

Madison, Wis.—(AP)—Mark Muth, of Green Bay, today took over the office of works projects administrator for Wisconsin.

He was appointed to the position by President Roosevelt and confirmed by the senate several months ago, but illness prevented him from taking immediate charge. Muth formerly was WPA district manager at Green Bay, and prior to that had been employed in the construction industry in Manitowish.

The new administrator announced he would confer today with Adjutant General Ralph M. Immelt to discuss works projects that might be included in the national defense program. He planned to meet with other state officials to consider Wisconsin's part in providing vocational education for youths along defense lines.

Muth conferred in Washington last week with Col. F. C. Harrington, commissioner of works projects, and attended a meeting of state administrators and regional directors at St. Louis.

C. W. Anderson, who was acting administrator during Muth's absence, has returned to his position as chief regional engineer at St. Paul. Anderson had been in charge of state headquarters since April 15 when the resignation of former administrator P. D. Flanner became effective.

Orders Burning of 3 Airport Murals

New York—(AP)—Lieut. Col. Brehon B. Somervell, New York WPA administrator, today ordered three of four murals recently hung in the administration building at Floyd Bennett field burned, declaring they were "obviously Communist murals."

The murals, which required more than three years to complete, were a WPA federal art project.

Colonel Somervell's action followed protests by several groups who asserted the murals showed the Wright brothers at Kitty Hawk in Russian peasant costumes; a red statue of Joseph Stalin with a fallen aviator at his feet; a red star insignia on a painting of the U. S. naval reserve hangar at the field; and a painting of the Soviet plane which flew from Moscow to California several years ago.

British Morale Major Factor in Nazi Attack

Effect of Civilian Casualties May Decide If Raids Can Be Beaten Off

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE

New York—(AP)—Whether England can ward off the impending Nazi attack in connection with the projected invasion will depend in no small degree on how much civilian slaughter can be endured without cracking the morale of its military defenders.

It is one thing for soldiers to face death for themselves, and quite another to see their women and children blown to pieces.

Under the best of circumstances, mass-bombing over Britain is bound to result in terrible civilian casualties. The bulk of its population lives in the congested industrial areas. Military objectives and civilians are so intermingled that there is no way of bombing one and not the other.

France's collapse owed much to the killing of women and children, and the millions of terrified, starving refugees who jammed the battlefields and highways in flight. They not only impeded the operations of the troops but their pitiful condition weakened the morale of the French police.

Eden's Warning
British War Minister Eden gave warning the other day when he admonished the civilian population to stay where they were when the bombs began to rain, and not rush into the highways and byways. If the people can stick in their little bomb-proofs, or such shelter as they can find, there will be man-power enough to do a sizable job of looking after the injured, extinguishing fires, and opposing any actual invasion.

It is a terrific strain to remain glued to a spot under heavy bombing. However, the British are facing the coming storm under no delusions. Old and young alike know that death lurks in the sky and that many must die. All indications are that they are determined to see it through under the leadership of Premier Churchill, who has told them:

"I have nothing to offer but blood, toil, tears and sweat. . . . Without victory there is no survival."

Women, Children Move
Britain is beginning to move, women and children out of the country. Some already have arrived in Canada and the United States, and many more will come if there is time before the German attack begins.

I understand that large numbers probably will be sent to Ireland—a much quicker and easier operation than crossing the Atlantic. There is danger that the Germans may try to invade Ireland, but there is less likelihood of mass-bombing over the Emerald Isle than over Britain.

England's smallness, while increasing the danger to its big population from bombing, has one advantage—it should be easier to defend against an air attack. Employment of German planes in masses certainly will result in large numbers of them being shot down. The Nazis expect this, and are prepared to risk the loss in an effort to achieve their objective.

Britain has another natural advantage. Its manufacturing as a whole isn't massed in cities but is spread over great areas. There are many small factories.

Situation Helps Nation
Family pride in manufacturing enterprises which may go back for generations has kept business from combining for the sake of efficiency. This attitude has retarded progress, and kept the cost of production high. But now England may cash in on this, for it will be no easy task to destroy her innumerable self-contained little industries.

Some of her most modern munitions works are underground. Many of the air-force hangars are half underground, so that there is much less chance of planes being damaged unless there is a direct hit on the hangar.

Whether Herr Hitler will try an actual invasion with troops would seem to me to depend on his success in the preliminary bombing. If the British air defenses are able to stand his planes off, he may decide not to try to land infantry. On the other hand, if the Nazi onslaught can break through the defenses and plow England under with bombs, the invasion certainly will follow.

Call Second Meeting Of State Delegation

Fond du Lac—(AP)—A second meeting of Wisconsin delegates to the Democratic national convention has been called for Milwaukee Wednesday to elect members to serve on committees at Chicago.

The committee members were to have been named here Saturday but only seven of the state's 24 delegates were present and the session was adjourned. William D. Carroll, chairman of the state central committee, had called the meeting.

The state central committee met after adjournment of the delegates' session and discussed party finances.

War Situation Today

Nazis Straf Britain While They Wait Hitler's Orders

German air-raiders dropped tons of incendiary, explosive and time-fuse bombs in widespread new attacks on Britain today, but still masked the scene of the projected invasion chosen by Adolf Hitler.

The raids, carrying on an almost incessant "strafing" of cities and military objectives that began on June 18, struck at coastal towns. "Some damage and a few casualties," but said two Nazi bombers were shot down by royal air force fighters.

So far Nazi bombing attacks on Britain have been widely scattered and reports from Berlin said that even men usually in the know were unable to say when Hitler would give the word for the next phase of the war.

Hitler and Italian Foreign Minister Count Ciano conferred yesterday. One report from Rome said Hitler and Ciano, due to meet again Wednesday, discussed plans for an offensive against England, with Ireland as the first objective.

Planes identified as belonging to Britain's fallen ally—France—raided Gibraltar again Sunday and the Italian air force was active in Africa and over Malta.

The French announced that two of their air squadrons had been reformed and joined the axis in attacks on Gibraltar.

Announcing during the weekend

demobilization of French naval forces at Alexandria, Egypt, the British said they had sunk two Italian supply ships, forced two large transports aground, left other ships in difficulties, and sank either an Italian destroyer or submarine. A British submarine off Norway was reported to have torpedoed five German supply ships.

The Germans reported two British destroyers were bombed so heavily in the North sea that they were total losses and that a British cruiser was damaged. Other successes claimed were the sinking of a submarine and two small naval vessels.

The British said that aerial mining in the Baltic and elsewhere had robbed German ships of any safe passages.

In southeast Europe, Turkey appeared as the next target of Russia's move to gain control of the Black sea.

The Soviet ambassador, Alexei Terentiev, conferred with Franz von Papen, German envoy to Turkey, and informed quarters said the two discussed demands which Russia is expected to make on Turkey shortly.

A new German mystery move in

Young Progressives Straf Heil in Their Platform

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Post-Crescent Staff Correspondent

Portage—Young Progressives of Wisconsin set up a new state-wide political organization at their convention here during the weekend as they endorsed the LaFollette brothers' isolationist policies and spiritedly condemned those "who would lead the American people into the maelstrom of militarism and imperialism."

Tom Fairchild of Portage, son of Justice Edward T. Fairchild of the Wisconsin supreme court, was named president of the Young Progressives of Wisconsin. Fairchild had been serving as chairman of the temporary youth committee.

With five Progressive candidates for governor and many lesser aspirants for office present during the proceedings, the convention attracted 150 youthful Progressive politicians from all parts of the state who heaped ridicule and scorn on the doings of the Republican state administration which they and their elders hope to turn out of the capitol in the fall elections.

Rap "War Mongers"

The youngsters declared their "fighting intention" to "organize the youth of Wisconsin into an aggressive movement dedicated to translating the principles of Progressivism into the laws of state and nation. Youth recognizes the urgency of such actions as a means to maintain for the American people their priceless heritage of freedom, democracy and opportunity."

They said that Progressive youth stands "ever ready to do our part in the legitimate defense of American soil," but will "resist any governmental war-mongering policy which will ultimately involve this country in the same brand of power politics which has plunged large portions of this world into chaos."

America's constructive role, they declared, is to show "to the oppressed peoples everywhere that a nation can be both free and prosperous. . . . This role cannot be played by engaging in reckless foreign adventures in which our people have no stake."

Moderates counseled for a "constructive" platform, but the convention majority, led by Miles McMullen of Green Bay, won adoption of a platform plank which said that Wisconsin is "appalled at the extent of political chicanery in the present Republican state administration."

It blasted Heil for "profanely attacking" the state civil service, impeding and demoralizing state educational services, for causing a "chaotic condition in state finances" and for a "regressive doctrine of taxation" which it was said is being fostered under his leadership in the statehouse.

Besides Fairchild, officers of the new political group include Spencer Yates, Glenwood City, vice president, Nancy Hart, Madison, corresponding secretary, John Lawton, Madison, secretary-treasurer.

Sixth district members of the executive board are James Mueller of Chilton and Rose Kohl of Slinger, while seventh district members are Paul McHenry of Waupaca and Mrs. George Frank of Shawano.

Eighth district members will be chosen by the executive board later, because of the absence of nominations at the convention, it was explained.

Stafford Runs For Governor

Another Progressive Seeks Nomination at September Primaries

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison—Harold S. Stafford, Chippewa Falls lawyer and western Wisconsin Progressive party spokesman regarded as having the support of some of the highest leaders of the party organization, today announced that he is a candidate for the Progressive nomination for governor in the September primary election.

Stafford, who has been campaigning informally for many weeks, issued his announcement from the Stafford-for-Governor headquarters here.

He said he would campaign for the nomination on pledges of increased aid for agriculture, security for labor, a "pay as you go" financial policy for the state government, and taxation based on the ability to pay.

Stafford is the fourth contender for the Progressive nomination to succeed Governor Heil thus far formally declared. Others are Henry Gunderson of Portage, former lieutenant governor, Senator Phil Nelson of Maple, and Assemblyman Paul Alfonsi of Pence, former house speaker.

Orland S. Loomis of Mauston, attorney general in the last LaFollette administration, was endorsed for the office recently by the Farmer-Labor-Progressive federation, but he has not yet accepted the invitation to run.

Stafford is 44, has been district attorney of Chippewa county, and past commander of the DAV and the American Legion of Wisconsin. He is married and has three children.

'Unity' for American Youth Stressed at Lake Geneva

Lake Geneva, Wis.—(AP)—The American Youth Congress accepted "unity" as its watchword today in what President Jack McMichael, of Quitman, Ga., called "this crucial political year of 1940."

McMichael, who was reelected without opposition, said in his closing remarks before adjournment of the annual meeting yesterday that "this year we must have, above all else, unity of American youth—unity for peace, for keeping America out of foreign war, for jobs for unemployed youth, for preservation of our civil rights and liberties."

Delegates cheered McMichael to the rafters of the rustic auditorium in nearby College camp where the slacks-and-shirts clad young folks from congested cities and the open prairies met on common ground in their earnest search for solution of youth problems.

Against Dictators
The congress in final session reaffirmed its stand against "all forms of dictatorship." Previously it overwhelmingly voted down a resolution by Franklin Kramer, Elgin, Ill., which also proposed to condemn all dictatorship but which mentioned specifically governments led by "a war dictator as are England and France, or a political dictator as are Germany, Italy, Japan, Russia and Franco Spain."

Principal opposition to Kramer's measure was on the inclusion of Russia. The resolution adopted, instead, named no countries.

Other principal officers were re-elected and nine regional representatives and 13 representatives at large were chosen. The cabinet of officials later will select next year's meeting place.

An offshoot of the convention was formation of a "pro-American" group supported by former Heavyweight Boxing Champion Gene Tunney.

The "pro-Americans" charged the A. Y. C. was "communist controlled," was refused delegates' seats on the ground their credentials were not properly filed, and then, after Tunney's personal appearance, announced they would establish a new youth movement, starting in Michigan, designed to rival the American Youth Congress.

Overwhelming Number of U. S. Citizens are Opposed to War

BY DR. GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., — If the people of the United States marched to the polls to vote on the question of "peace or war" today—a procedure proposed in the much-discussed Ludlow referendum plan—the final count would likely show about 6½ million voters in favor of entering the European war, but approximately 39 millions opposed.

That conclusion is indicated today in a nation-wide war survey by the American Institute of Public Opinion, in which the opinions of a cross-section of American voters were applied to the 45½ millions in the U. S. voting population.

Together with other institute surveys on the same issue since June 1, today's sample "war referendum" gives a graphic picture of what has been happening to American sentiment during one of the most critical months of history. Here is the step-by-step story as U. S. opinion reacted to the ups and downs of the conflict overseas:

1. In the first of three consecutive surveys the Institute found 16 persons in every hundred saying they would vote for war if a national referendum were called. This survey, completed June 2, followed closely on news of the Battle of Flanders.

How much war sentiment had increased is shown by the fact that a month before—on May 29—only 7 per cent had voted "yes" to the question: "Do you think the United States should declare war on Germany and send our Army and Navy abroad to fight?"

2. In the second Institute study—completed June 14—war sentiment was still rising. As Adolf Hitler's "panzer" divisions drove deeply into France, and as Fascist Italy came into the war, the Institute found nearly one person in every five (19½%) saying he would cast his vote for war. The Institute's war referendum question had been altered to include Italy among the belligerents, of course, and now read: "If the question of the United States going to war against Germany and Italy came up for a national vote within the next two weeks, would you vote to go into the war or to stay out of the war?"

Public opinion in mid-June may also have reflected to some extent President Roosevelt's rousing Charlottesville speech June 10, in which he castigated the European dictators.

Trend Dips
The latest of the three surveys reflects what has happened to American opinion since the news of the French surrender. From 16 per cent in early June, and from 19 per cent in mid-June, the number saying they would now vote for a declaration of war is 14 per cent—or approximately 6½ million voters when applied to the entire voting population.

The actual figures tell the story of American public opinion in one of the most memorable periods in U. S. history:

June 2 (After Battle of Flanders)—Before Battle of France) 16% 84%

June 14 (French Driven Back—Italy Enters) 19 81

Today (After French Surrender) 14 86

Confidence Declines
The surveys show just where the greatest sources of war sentiment are to be found today—in the Southern states and along the Eastern seaboard. The average "war vote" in the South is 23 per cent (See box for details.)

One factor in the recent drop in war sentiment is undoubtedly the growing pessimism in the United States about the chances of England and her dominion allies.

Whereas 82 per cent expected an Allied victory when the war began, a supplementary question in today's survey shows that only 32 per cent are now expecting England to pull through, with the remainder undecided or foreseeing an Axis victory.

The trend at three significant points in the last ten months has been:

"Which side do you think will win the war?"

Date	Allies (%)	Axis (%)	Undecided (%)
Sept. 1939 (War Begins)	82	7	11
May, 1940 (After Battle of Norway)	55	17	28
Today	32	35	33

Interestingly enough, voters in the lower and middle income groups are more in favor of a war declaration at the present time than well-to-do groups:

Income Group	Would Vote For War (%)	Would Vote Against War (%)
Upper Income Group	10	90
Middle Income Group	14	86
Lower Income Group	16	84

This may perhaps be the result of party affiliations, for the survey shows that many more Democrats favor entering the war than Republicans. Roosevelt backers are 19 per cent in favor of such a move, while Republicans average only 9 per cent in favor.

Throughout the country, only 8 per cent said they were undecided.

Get Funds for State Study of Game Problems

$31,000 Is Available Under National Act For Extensive Survey

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison—Solution of some of the basic problems involved in the management of deer, waterfowl, pheasants, prairie chicken and sharp-tailed grouse will be attempted by the state conservation department in studies made possible through a $31,000 grant of funds from Washington under the Pittman-Robertson act, it was learned here today.

One of the most important aspects of the project will be the study of Wisconsin lakes, sloughs and marshes which in recent years have failed to lure waterfowl, possibly through a change in food and cover conditions, or other factors, it was said.

"Experimental plantings of aquatic food and cover plants will be featured and areas presenting definite problems such as Lake Butte des Morts in Winnebago county will receive first consideration," according to Walter Scott of the state game management office.

Follow-Up Studies

Special attention will also be given to follow-up studies on artificial pond holes and sloughs which have been created for experimental purposes recently in Shawano, Winnebago and Outagamie counties, Scott said.

Scott added: "Wisconsin is known as one of the last strongholds of the prairie chicken and sharp-tailed grouse. In spite of this fact, many details regarding the proper management of these birds are still unknown. Major work in this project will center around an attempt to determine the management methods necessary in order to keep these birds in territory they now seem to

New Insurance Law to Have Little Effect on Counties

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison—The new law requiring counties to return insurance policies of old age pensioners taken before 1937 will have only a slight effect on public finances in most Wisconsin counties, state welfare officials said today, because only a few counties adopted the practice of requiring transfers of insurance.

Before the 1937 legislature acted to exempt insurance policies of old age pension beneficiaries having a cash surrender value of less than 1,000, counties were allowed to require such transfers, along with personal property and real estate, as a condition for acceptance for the old age pension rolls.

Only two counties, however, Milwaukee and Rock, adopted rigid rules on the transfer of insurance. Some transfers took place in other counties, it was explained, but only in special cases. The state welfare department has no figures on the effect of the new law, although it has been estimated that it will cost Milwaukee county $150,000.

Didn't Need Transfer
Although the 1937 legislature acted to exempt up to $1,000 worth of insurance of old age pension recipients, the law did not require the return of property transferred to the county from pensioners before that date, according to an attorney general's opinion in that year. Attorney General Orland S. Loomis so ruled on the day he left office almost two years ago.

The 1939 pension law, however, carried a rider requiring counties to return all previously transferred policies in excess of $1,000. The law took effect on July 1.

Some state officials believe that the return of their policies now may raise complications for some old age pensioners who may cash them. Under the law pensioners may be removed from the rolls when the county administrative agency finds that they have private means. That some removals are likely as the result of the return of insurance policies is considered probable by state department administrators.

Interest Grows In Contests for County Offices

District Attorney And Sheriff Jobs Draw Most Candidates

Although candidates for most county offices in the fall election are appearing, the jobs of district attorney and sheriff hold the spotlight of attention as the number of contestants for the two positions continues to climb. Nine persons are circulating nomination papers for sheriff, while five are in the race for district attorney.

Dohr, who was elected to the office on the Democratic ticket, is having nomination papers circulated on both the Republican and Democratic party tickets.

Nine candidates are in the race for sheriff, but it is likely the number will be much larger before July 30, the deadline for filing nomination papers at the county clerk's office.

Candidates for sheriff are Under-sheriff Fred Frank, Republican; George Brautigam, Appleton, Republican; William Meyer, Appleton, Republican; Joseph W. Versteeg, Little Chute, Republican; Ted Loose, Appleton, Democrat; Robert O. Smith, Grand Chute, Republican; Frank Hilgenberg, Kaukauna, Progressive; Walter Scherck, Appleton, Republican; and Floyd Acheson, Appleton, Republican. John Lappen, present sheriff, is ineligible for reelection, having served two consecutive terms. Other county officers are seeking reelection.

Better Camp For Scouts at Gardner Dam

Six New Cabins Being Built; Swimming Pool Ready for Youngsters

An improved camp site greeted valley council scouts today at Gardner dam as the summer headquarters of outdoor activity opened for another season. Hundreds of youths will attend camp until it closes Aug. 25.

The first arrivals this morning found six new cabins in the process of building, with the additions to find use this season. The camp will no longer have to depend on its own generating plant for power, as connections have been made this year with an outside plant.

The natural swimming pool is now available to scouts for the entire stay at camp, whereas previously it could be used only part of the summer. Frank Schreiner of Chicago, camp director, will be on the job all summer. Before this the scout executive was the director, and was at Gardner dam only part of the time.

Scouts lost no time preparing for camp activities after moving in this morning. Groups are being organized for the many hikes and trips arranged each year as a part of the camp program. Other scouts are learning the preliminaries of handicraft work under Anthony Kolitsch, Appleton handicraft leader, while Robert Langlois, also of Appleton, is arranging the hikes.

Senate Committee Favors 4 Billion For '2-Ocean Navy'

Washington (U)—A declaration that "halfway measures will not suffice" came from the senate naval committee today in a formal report recommending enactment of a $4,000,000,000 authorization bill to bring about a "two-ocean navy."

The report appeared soon after Admiral J. O. Richardson arrived unexpectedly at the navy department from Hawaii, where the bulk of the United States fleet now is stationed under his command.

"Our navy, including our naval air forces," the committee said, "must be ready and be stronger than potential aggressors."

"To be second best is not only an invitation to war, but to utter disaster. All history proves this contention, and the defeat of the French offers a classic example."

Admiral Richardson traveled to Washington in secrecy and the navy department did not disclose his presence until a day after he reached the capital.

Woman Miner in Desert Gets Scores of Marriage Offers

BY HUBBARD KEAVY

San Bernardino, Calif. (U)—The Mohave desert's only woman miner can end her lonely existence in the rocky wastes of the Sawtooth mountains anytime she wants to.

But 31-year-old Grace E. Finley, who operates her copper mine single-handedly, says she's going to continue to mine alone and like it.

The flood of marriage offers started pouring in last year after the story of Grace's mine, told during one of her infrequent visits to "civilization," got into the newspapers. They're still coming in and everytime she comes to town there's another batch of proposals waiting for her.

"They all seem to think it's terrible, the lonely life I lead," said Grace, here today to buy another case of beans. "Well, I don't feel lonely and I like the way I live. I love the desert and it's all the companionship I need."

Grace's mine is located near Copper City, a ghost town now but 40 years ago a booming camp of copper miners. The buildings have fallen down and there's nothing left of Copper City in an anvil and a spring. Grace's tent is pitched by the spring.

She digs out about a ton of ore a week and when she gets a load, she trucks it to a mill where she sells it for about $19 a ton. Grace has been operating for four years and, while she isn't getting rich, geologists have told her she is digging toward a rich deposit. Incidentally, she discovered the mine herself.

Once she had two men working for her, but "they wouldn't work." "I'm going to keep on digging just the way I always have," she added, "and if there are any men interested in mining let them come out with capital—instead of matrimonial offers."

Rather warm weather continued this morning over the north central and plains states, with maxima of 90 degrees or above recorded yesterday at many stations in the plains states, but it is now cooler over the northern Rocky mountains and Canadian Northwest.

Showers and thunderstorms are expected in this section during the next 24 hours, with slightly warmer temperatures.

HOW TO GET A $100 LOAN WITHOUT ENDORSERS

You can borrow $100 if you can pay back $6.43 a month—See table for other loan plans—No credit questions asked of friends or relatives—Quick, private service.

YOU can get a personal loan—without red tape or delay—if you can repay in monthly installments. All you do to apply for a loan at Household is to acquaint us with your problem. You need no bankable security—no endorsers or guarantors. You may repay your loan on any of the schedules shown in the table below. Thus you may choose the payment plan which best fits your own needs and income.

Payments to fit your purse Suppose that you need a $100 loan. You find this amount in the first column of the table. Then read across picking out the monthly payment which you wish to make. You will see, for instance, that monthly installments of $9.77 each will repay a $100 loan in full in twelve months. Or, $6.43 a month for twenty months will also repay a $100 loan.

You will note that the sooner you repay the less your loan costs. Four monthly installments of $26.60 each, or a total of only $106.40, for instance, will repay a $100 loan in full.

Same rate to everyone Installments shown in the table repay everything. These installments include charges at Household's rate of 2½% per month on that part of a balance not exceeding $100, 2% per month on that part of a balance in excess of $100 but not exceeding $200, and 1½% per month on any remainder. Household has only this one rate—the same for everyone, whether new customer or former borrower.

Simple to borrow You get your Household Finance loan in a simple, private transaction. We require no stocks or bonds, no salary or wage assignment. (Loans are made on furniture, car, or note.) You are spared the embarrassment of asking friends or fellow-workers to sign the loan papers with you. And no questions regarding your credit are asked of friends or relatives.

Considerate treatment You may expect every consideration in case of sickness or unemployment while paying on a Household Finance loan. Last year we foreclosed on only one chattel mortgage for each 20,000 loans. This action was taken only as protection against fraud.

If a loan can help you to solve a money problem, you are urged to study the table carefully. Then phone or visit us for further information. You will be under no obligation to borrow.

90-Day Truce Ends Strike at Plywood Plant

Agreement Is Reached By Union, Management At Sunday Conference

New London—Employees of the American Plywood corporation returned to their jobs this morning, terminating a 2-week strike conducted by the Plywood and Veneer Workers local, No. 2890, to which the 270 workers belong.

A 90-day truce was agreed upon by the union bargaining committee and the management in a special conference Sunday morning, it was announced by E. F. Buelow, president of the local. H. M. Zaug of the management, said that nearly all the employees had returned to work this morning and the rest would be put back to work as soon as possible.

While no provisions of the settlement were disclosed, Buelow said a satisfactory agreement had been reached by the two parties and negotiations would continue for another 90 days to complete details.

The strike started the evening of June 20 when the union and management failed to reach an agreement on vacations with pay. The union demanded a week's vacation while the company offered 2 days.

An agreement on wages was reached before the strike over the question of vacations began. The union asked a raise in the minimum rate for the lowest paid workers and a 5-cent an hour hike in the minimum rate for machine operators, skilled and unskilled. A compromise of a 2 1/2 cent raise, affecting 83 men, was agreed upon.

Buelow said late last week that a strike donation had been received by the local from the general office in Indianapolis.

Pegler Doesn't Think Much Of Mr. Capeci's Second Love

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York — Thanks to John D. Capeci of Port Chester, N. Y., it is possible today to present clearly the sentiments of a native American who retains affection for Italy and to discuss those sentiments from the standpoint of those who feel no tie to any other country.

Mr. Capeci says I have yet to learn that "The United States of Italian origin is as fine and upright a citizen as the descendant of any other race; that Italy's contribution to the United States has been very, very great that every United States of Italian origin lives first for the United States."

But that does not mean, he says, that the same man has not a second love.

"For everyone in the United States has a second love," he writes, "and the country consisting of peoples of every land, it is not natural that these same people retain affections for their erstwhile lands. To think otherwise is infantile."

First, let me say that I have never disparaged the honor or citizenship of "the United States of Italian origin."

I have, however, pointed out that some Americans of Italian origin or blood have silently acquiesced in the most hateful disparagement of the American people by the Italian press, but have been quick to resent truthful comment regarding Italy.

I wonder if Mr. Capeci has been denounced with equal passion, or even taken mild exception to, the constantly hostility of the official Italian press toward the country for which he "lives first."

After all, when Mussolini's press calls the United States a nation of gangsters that goes for Mr. Capeci. And if he does not resent it he has no right to object to expressions of resentment by other Americans who have no "second love." If he doesn't mind being called a gangster he speaks only for himself.

I realize, of course, that Americans who feel as he does toward Italy have been put on a spot, but submit that it was Mussolini who put them on the spot. But he certainly doesn't voice the feelings of all Americans of Italian origin for there are many others who detest fascism and feel not pride but humiliation for the old country under the duce.

Love is a wonderful mystery, so perhaps it were a mistake to try to understand the affection for Italy of which Mr. Capeci speaks. But he has opened the discussion and thus invites the observation that Italy wasn't very kind to her people who emigrated to the United States by thousands to escape hunger, oppression and ignorance. And Mr. Capeci presumably has never even seen Italy except, perhaps, as a tourist. Why then, this "affection" for Italy? Did Italy give his immigrant parents or grandparents a break?

I do not agree that everyone in the United States has "a second

EXTRA SKILL AND EXTRA DARING MADE CLINTON FERGUSON AMERICA'S NO.1 OUTBOARD CHAMPION

BOMBHELL! That's his name for it. A splinter of mahogany, a bit of fabric, varnish...why, it's nothing but a shell with a motor. But when Clinton Ferguson clamps down the throttle of that motor, you've got the fastest combination in outboating today. Speed? More than that. Speed plus—plus one man's uncanny ability to wheedle and squeeze just a few extra miles per hour out of four cylinders and a propeller. Yes, it's the extras that win—even in cigarettes.

LEAN, WIRY, 135 pounds of nerve and driving skill. Hunched in that tiny pit—one hand on the wheel, the other on the throttle—he roars across the surface in a frothing skid against time. Half in, half out of the water, Clinton Ferguson never lets up. Turns? He takes them wide open...throws himself around...with a daring equalled only by the extra skill of his steering hand. Boats, drivers—cigarettes—it's the extras that set them apart...like the extra mildness of Camels.

THE "EXTRAS" IN CAMELS MADE THEM HIS CIGARETTE

THOSE EXTRAS IN SLOWER-BURNING CAMELS SURE CLICK WITH ME

THE "EXTRAS" of costlier, slower-burning tobaccos have made Camels the No. 1 cigarette in the field. And the explanation of these extras in Camels is just as scientific as it is logical. Too-fast burning in a cigarette creates excess heat. Excess heat ruins the delicate elements of mildness and flavor. Slower burning preserves flavor and aroma...naturally gives a cooler smoke. Camels, with their costlier tobaccos, give you extras that you won't find in any other cigarette—even a slower way of burning that means extra smoking per pack (see panel at right).

Manhood Against Gold

"I will not countenance a contribution exceeding $5,000 from any one person."

"I want no corporation contributions in any guise, whether they be advertising in campaign books, programs or anything else."

"I don't want any man to think that by reason of a large contribution he may become entitled to appointment as ambassador or anything else."

"No posts are for sale."

This was the first swinging uppercut by Mr. Willkie, after returning to New York, to the already groggy Democrats, reeling and hanging onto the ropes like Beer Barrel Galento.

It is part of the clarion call to manhood.

For the November battle looms as another titanic struggle between manhood and money, and its outcome will indicate whether honesty and talent or misrule and corrupt gold shall rule America.

Mr. Roosevelt already has a billion dollar campaign fund voted to him by this Democratic congress to spend as he pleases among that class he has rendered permanent and known as the one-third ill fed.

Mr. Farley is lining the heavy mail bags with still more gold.

Presidential appointments, such as Jimmy Cromwell, the Golden Boy, may be relied upon to loosen big rolls of cash from a defunct and mentally decrepit class who are bankrupt of ideas and crave nothing more than a smart suggestion of what to do with their deadly time. There are numerous Golden Boys who can be tapped for $50,000 per, whose wives will furnish another $50,000. Together they will employ their influence in companies in which they are interested to buy advertising in the Democratic campaign book up to $8,500 a page which has an actual circulation value of 2 per cent of that amount.

It should be gratifying to an American people to observe the quick, instinctive reactions of the Republican nominee and to see him strike out robustly and intensely against loaded dice and marked cards.

Here is no candidate opening up a pot of syrup to see how he can conceal malignant spots and at the same time attract the flies. He isn't "clever" that way. And the direct and emphatic manner he employs reveals an utter lack of patience with anything smacking of shuffling or trimming.

Every step that Willkie has taken outlines the character of the approaching battle. It is manhood against money. It is clear-eyed talent against purple power. It is leadership aimed at wholesome heights against leadership driving low-browed dogs into dismal caves with the remaining nuggets from a looted treasury.

The Frustration of Public Opinion

We often delude ourselves that public opinion is paramount in a democracy when that statement is only partially true.

Two cases may be cited in which public opinion was overwhelmingly in favor of the correction of certain evils but our rulers would not move.

The first is in respect to altering the constitutional privileges of men accused of crime so that they may be questioned in court and if they persist in refusing to answer the jury may be permitted to infer a guilty knowledge upon their part. We dare say that 90 out of a hundred people in this country would favor such an alteration. But those with power to move turn away. There is no political advantage in a mere clean and worthy improvement which does not involve the touching of men's hatred or their bias.

The people of this country have indicated on many occasions the tremendous strength of popular opinion in favor of preparedness. But the glorious social and political climbers elected to office could not be induced to shape public opinion into action since it did not appear that there was any abiding political advantage in the work.

As far back as five years ago the Gallup Institute of Public Opinion specifically submitted to the people the question whether they believed the army, navy and air force of this country should be increased. The vote was as strong for such increase as the vote to rid the country of Prohibition, and in respect to increasing the air force ran to 84 per cent.

There was no menace in the skies in those days although sabers could be heard distantly rattling and the drone of air motors presaged perilous possibilities. But congress and the President did exactly nothing. They did worse than nothing.

ing. They sapped the strength of the country with absurd gestures, ridiculous laws, and thought they would keep the populace appeased by chasing such broom-riding witches as economic royalists.

Again in 1938 the Gallup poll asked the identical question. And now the majority came like those flood waters when the Caneau river ran wild at Johnstown. A greater air force was demanded by 91 per cent of the people. But our rulers paid no heed.

The people are inherently cautious and prize their great treasure of liberty. The politicians—as distinguished from the few statesmen—are looking after their own political hides. The Pinks and Fellow Travelers might have objected had we coolly and carefully made the preparation we now seek to make so feverishly.

English and German Problems and Dangers

That Europe is on the brink of starvation may be discounted on general principles. Propaganda stories of this sort are released from time to time by nations at war to sustain their own morale. This particular story has a great resemblance to a story of the same tenor issued from the same capital a few months before America went into World War No. 1. The world was told that Germany was collapsing. It didn't seem so bad to go to war against someone collapsing. After the story was released German deaths on the battlefield amounted to nearly a million men before she capitulated.

Nevertheless Berlin wants peace badly simply because she has gained even more than she expected and is smart enough to realize that an unconcluded war can never be counted upon for any advantages.

The more conflict spreads in Europe the worse it is for Berlin. If a million Rumanians are in camp crops and harvests will suffer. If another million Hungarians are on the march the cattle country will not produce what may otherwise be expected from it.

Nevertheless, it is not farfetched to assume that Russian demands for territory have the approval of Herr Hitler, particularly if we could know what was offered the Reich for the privilege. It does not seem reasonable to assume that Russia is acting upon her own responsibility. The authority of the Nazis upon the continent is too complete, their war machine too terrible and devastating to suggest the advisability of others acting in non-conformity to German wishes.

But despite the greatness of Hitler on the continent he appears farther from peace with England than ever.

His invitation to Italy to join the conflict certainly was not issued because he needed any troops to overrun France. Hitler held Mussolini off from the conflict with the probable purpose of using this entry to discourage the English just when the skies looked blackest for them anyway. But although the English certainly scared, and ran up their customary cries for help, they stood their ground and have fought back toe to toe. Moreover overtures for peace, probably originating in Berlin, have been disdainfully scorned by London. England has properly appraised the non-value to the Reich of Italian help. To date the English control the Mediterranean. Their buccaneering of the French fleet makes their position in the Mediterranean all the more secure. But it is not likely that Italy will feel the British encirclement for another year if she has been at all smart in the amount of her stores.

Germany may have success in its war with Britain far beyond the expectation of even the Nazis but the chances do not point that way. The probabilities are against Germany unless by stuka and submarine she can impose upon Britain the empty stomachs Britain expected to impose upon her.

A Verse for Today

By Anne Campbell

MARILYN'S WEDDING DAY

Now may the morning sunlight fall
Upon her as new days begin.
May happy birds of summer call
Joy to the heart of Marilyn!

Upon her few untroubled years,
Shadows of doubt have never lain.
The future is not free from fears,
But in her life may joy remain.

The sun will climb to brightest noon,
And past, where evening beams grow thin.
May morning light and midnight moon
Bring only joy to Marilyn!

May the sweet symbols of this day
Follow her through a long glad life.
And find her, as the sunbeams play,
A smiling bride, a happy wife!

SYMBOLIC ECONOMY

A number of senators and representatives have declared that the proposed super-tax of $500,000,000 is inadequate. They recommend a much heavier tax bill—in this they received the support of the ways and means committee—and they would in addition broaden the income tax base and lower exemptions. This recommendation is sound in principle, but it must be seriously questioned whether any attempt should be made to rush it through the present session in the next few weeks. Not merely our whole tax structure but our whole structure of federal expenditures is in need of thorough revision. Expenditures and taxes need to be considered together in a comprehensive effort to bring order into the government's fiscal affairs. Introduce drastic economies in non-defense expenditures, and reduce as far as possible, even while total revenues are being increased, the kind of taxes that discourage or hamper production.—New York Times.

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY GO ROUND

BY DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN
Washington—To say that the Willkie-McNary ticket worried Democratic chiefs is to put it mildly. The real fact is that they are scared stiff. Not only are they fearful of the campaigning effectiveness of the powerful GOP combination, but they are even more disturbed by their own state of disorganization.

Because of the serious rift between Jim Farley and the New Dealers, the Democratic National committee hasn't functioned for months. Whatever battles were waged for the Democratic party originated from outside the committee. All of the anti-Willkie-McNary blasts in the senate and house came from independent Democrats.

Meanwhile every GOP fusillade on Capitol hill has behind it the rejuvenated and fast-clicking Republican National committee.

Another thing that alarms insiders is the effect of the president's strong pro-ally policy on large blocs of voters. German, Italian and certain Irish elements are hostile, and fairly sure to vote Republican. Similarly, John L. Lewis' vendetta is certain to cost votes.

Lewis speaks for only a minority of the CIO. Not one important union in the organization has endorsed his stand. However, he has destroyed the effectiveness of Labor's Nonpartisan league as a campaign force, and in 1936 this was an important factor in several key industrial centers.

All in all, it looks like very stormy weather for the Democrats in November.

LOVES HOT AIR

Summer heat has come to Washington, but the president's only air-conditioning method is to take off his coat and hang it over the back of a chair.

The executive offices of the White House are air-conditioned, but the president will have none of it in his office. He keeps the vents turned off and opens the French doors looking out on the rose gardens and the South grounds. This, and the coat removal, are enough for him.

In the White House proper, separate air-cooling units have been established in the various rooms. (This was preferred to air-conditioning, so as to avoid tearing out walls to introduce new vents.) But the president at first declined to have even a cooling unit in his rooms.

Finally he was persuaded to accept it, with the understanding that it would not be turned on when he was there.

The same is true of the presidential yacht, Potomac. Air-conditioning equipment has just been installed throughout the boat, but the president insists that it be turned off in his room.

Note—The same preference for nature's hot air is expressed by Cordell Hull and Sumner Welles in the state department. Their rooms are the only offices in the building which have cooling units, and neither makes use of it.

NAZI REVOLUTION

When nazi troops marched into Poland, September 1, 1939, Adolf Berle, assistant secretary of state and Roosevelt brain truster, remarked: "This is the beginning of the world revolution."

The war—or revolution—has now been in progress for ten months and every report coming back from Germany indicates the truth of Berle's words.

For what most people do not realize about Germany is that the nazis are fighting with a crusading revolutionary fervor. They are staging a social revolution. Their redistribution of wealth in Germany makes Stalin's look sick.

Today in Germany the free business man has almost vanished. He is working for the government. All his raw materials come from the government. His credit is arranged by the government, and prices are manipulated almost daily by the government.

Today in Germany also, the industrialist who owns an automobile does not dare to drive it to work. It would be taken away from him, and he would be hauled off the streets. Only nazi officials ride in cars. Others ride bicycles.

Real fact is that Germany has borrowed Karl Marx back from Russia and made it work.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

Approximately one-third of the 1,000 delegates at the GOP convention were World war veterans and all the candidates had vets playing leading roles in their campaigns. . . . Harry Colmer of Kansas, former American Legion commander, was active for Willkie, and Ben Doris of Oregon, one of the three remaining Legion "king makers," worked for Taft. . . . Asisting Doris was chunky little Karl Kitchen of Cleveland, who managed the only Legion convention that didn't go in the red. . . . Senator Rush Holt, buck-toothed West Virginia anti-New Deal Democrat, recently defeated for re-nomination, is quietly aiding the campaign of Tom Sweeney, the Republican nominee. . . . At the Philadelphia convention hard-hitting Frank Waltman, GOP press director and former Washington newsman, had a hard time staying with the big-wigs. Waltman latched to get down in the press rows with his former colleagues. . . . State department telephone girls have never been busier than they are now, even in the hectic days of last September. . . . Coast guard officials are receiving complaints from sleepy-eyed summer residents that the new blade of coastal fog horns is unbearable.

UNRECONSTRUCTED REBEL

South Carolina's Democratic delegation is pledged to a third term, but Senator "Cotton Ed" Smith is still waging his personal vendetta against the president.

Shortly after Pat Harrison declared for Roosevelt, Smith roared up to the Mississippi senator while he was chatting with Senator Bilbo, also from Mississippi, and said, "Well, I see you've joined the blankety-blank opportunists."

"What do you mean, Ed?" asked Harrison quietly.

"He's probably referring to your coming out for a third term," cut in Bilbo. "Well, I have, too. What of it?"

"Nobody would expect anything different from you," snapped Smith. "You're an expert at playing politics."

"Well, well, well, look who's talking," taunted Bilbo derisively. "Smith, since when have you become a statesman? You're never doing anything in your life but play politics—and I'm not saying what kind."

Smith ignored this haymaker and turned to Harrison. "Pat," he said, "I never figured you would forget your principles and endorse the dictatorial ambitions of that man in the White House. Especially after the way he opposed you in your contest with Barkley for the floor leadership."

"Listen, Ed," exclaimed Harrison, "get this straight—I harbor no feeling against the president on that account. That's water over the dam and he had a perfect right to express a preference. Moreover, I am not letting personal matters bias me at a time like this, when the country is facing one of the gravest crises in its history."

"Okay," spluttered Smith, "if that's the way you feel about it, then we're through. I was your friend but from now on we travel different paths. You go your way and I'll go mine."

"That's fine. That just suits me perfectly," Harrison grinned as Smith, blowing like a steam engine, stomped away.

A Bystander In Washington

BY JACK STINNETT

Washington—Around this town, the boys have come to one conclusion: This is going to be one of the fightingest campaigns in the history of American politics.

The reason, of course, is the nomination of Wendell L. Willkie. The Peck's bad boy of Indiana has been scrapping ever since he could double his fists. He's a fighter, and he's got the money, success, fame and enjoyment in fighting with something besides your fists. Now, with words, ideas, personality and business cunningness, he has maneuvered himself into that world's championship which is open only once every four years and which has been won by only 32 men in 150 years—the contest for the presidency of the United States.

The fact that Willkie is the G.O.P. candidate is what makes everyone around here so positive it is going to be a knock-down, drag-out battle—no matter whom the Democrats name at Chicago.

Gather 'Round, Folks

Let's dig a little deeper and I'll tell you why they are so certain about it.

In the first place, Willkie is a talker. His worst enemy (if he has one who is purely personal, the fellow has failed to come forward yet . . . although he has plenty now who are theoretical enemies, even within the Republican party) recognizes that Willkie has an exceptional platform and radio presence.

There's no need now to analyze it but it's a sort of all-American approach. Willkie is a well-educated Indiana farmer, and that's what he talks like. He's no spellbinder and he's no Billy Sunday-William Jennings Bryan. But he does have something of all of those which he combines with a disarming intimacy. He seems to say, even when he's talking on the radio, "Gather around folks, I'll tell you all I know—and what I don't know, I'll tell you I don't know."

Add to that a canny mind that seems never stumped for an answer and the answer is always worth listening to, whether you agree with it or not. In other words, here is a speaker worthy of the best . . . and with the physical stamina of an elephant. The Democrats—no matter who they are—are going to have a tough time keeping up with him in number of speeches made, whether it's on the radio or "stumping the sticks."

Now, bearing all this in mind—combative, platform and microphone ability, and stamina—toss in the fact that Willkie agrees with President Roosevelt and the Democrats on the principles of almost every major issue—and what do you have? Probably the most formidable opponent to the Democrats that the Republicans could have found.

Up To The Democrats

Don't think for a minute that the Democrats here don't realize this, and that they aren't turning it over and over in their minds this very minute. That's why I can pass along that the coming campaign is going to be one of the fightingest—maybe one of the bitterest—this country has seen. The only thing that could prevent it would be for the Democrats to name a weak sister, crawl off in a corner somewhere, and hope that lightning would strike Wendell L. Willkie.

That's what the Democrats are saying among themselves. By a fluke or by the clever manipulations of Mr. Willkie or somebody, the tables have been turned and it's up to the Democrats to stop the man that Old Guard Republicans couldn't.

Just how it is to be done is even now being worked out behind the scenes. It won't be long before the first opposition guns will be fired. President Roosevelt and his administration have never been ones to sit around and see what's going to happen. Nobody has ever accused the President of being short on political strategy or long on leisure.

Exactly what turn the battle will take is almost impossible for me or even the experts to envision now. But it's going to be exciting enough so that even the kibitzer can get in to a lather about it. As for the politicians: It looks like a tough summer and for some of them—an early fall.

Just a Step Behind the News

By Dave Boone

Uncle Sam's defense program seems to be running rapidly in all directions. Billions have been voted for defense, but there appears to be about as much system and direction to it as there is to a bingo carnival.

The idea seems to be that if you spend enough money you're safe. But an appropriation never stopped a tank yet. In fact you can't even stop a tomato unless you convert the money into a good stopper.

Everybody would feel a little safer if Washington would be a little more convincing in its plans to convert the money into something more than headlines. How about some blueprints?

I see Jim Farley is to become a baseball club owner. I figure Jim wants to be able to tell who's running by looking at the number on the uniform instead of hanging around for a year or more for a signal.

Under the CAPITOL DOME

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Madison—Capitol political reporters as July 30—the deadline for filing nomination papers—approach rapidly are scratching their heads in wonderment at the apparent hesitancy of candidates for state office to announce themselves.

As this is written during the weekend only one Democratic candidate has appeared, no Progressive nomination papers have indicated their availability for office except the governorship, and only one Republican incumbent, Treasurer John Smith, has been informed of probable opposition in the primary election.

RESOLVE

Over at NPA headquarters (National Progressives of America) they have tabulated the mail brought in after Phil LaFollette's recent speech on foreign policy and have found that 97 per cent of the listeners who took the trouble to comment are favorable.

The count, says a story in the current issue of the LaFollette weekly paper, shows an overwhelming approval of LaFollette's position urging America to keep out of European war and to "fulfill our destiny" by "developing the making secure the great new frontier here at home."

A CALL

At the recent Republican state convention at Green Bay supporters of D. J. Kenny of West Bend, who made the keynote speech at the rally, almost succeeded in getting a convention invitation for Kenny to run for the unnamed high office before the convention managers realized what was going on.

About half the delegates in the crammed hall had shouted their approval when the motion was withdrawn.

That the idea of a solicited candidacy is still being pressed by the Kenny men, however, is shown in the steady flow of announcements from county party meetings showing endorsements of his expected candidacy for the U. S. senate.

HIGHWAYS AND POLITICS

One probable reason for the expected change in the plan to pay the $4,400,000 in county trunk aids due this month in installments is the worry in the executive office about the effect of such installment payments on the primary election campaign. If it is at all possible, Hill will attempt to pay the bill in one, or at the outside, two installments, and well before the date of the September election so as to remove the possibility of an attack from the Progressives on that score.

Hill's reasoning is probably wise, because it is known that some important county officials are pretty riled at the withdrawal of their allotments for state highway construction this year.

POT-POURRI

Jerome P. Fox, who turned down a nomination for attorney general at the state Democratic convention, has circulated the nomination papers of Attorney General John E. Martin, former Democrat who is seeking reelection as a Republican.

The Stafford for Governor club set up headquarters in the capital city last week. . . . Many of the Progressive legislators who were swept out of office in the 1938 Republican landslide are candidates for reelection. . . . Announcement of Mark Catlin of Appleton that he will run again for the legislature probably means that Congressman Joshua L. Johns has given up senatorial aspirations and will be a candidate for reelection to this house. . . .

cratic party a favor by seeing that Wendell Willkie don't throw out any first ball.

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.,
Noted Physician and Author

QUININE

Ubiquitous and versatile are adjectives commonly applied to the pneumococcus. If germs could be assumed to have consciousness the pneumococcus would be well adapted for a Jekyll-Hyde character. In its Dr. Jekyll state the pneumococcus is found in at least twenty per cent of healthy persons' mouths—it is a normal inhabitant of the mouth. The great Pasteur found the germ in the saliva of a child "dead of hydrophobia" in 1880, and thought it was the "cocci of sputum septicemia." Surgeon-General Sternberg of the U. S. Army medical corps, about the same time, inoculated rabbits with his own saliva, and isolated from the inoculated rabbits a micrococcus which he considered the cause of sputum septicemia. In 1884 a German physician, Albert Fraenkel, working with an Austrian pathologist, Anthony Weichselbaum, determined that Pasteur's and Sternberg's sputum septicemia germ was the germ most frequently found in the lung in pneumonia.

The pneumococcus is kin to the notorious streptococcus and indeed recent laboratory studies indicate that a comparatively innocuous strain of pneumococcus may be transmuted into virulent streptococcus by certain cultural conditions or by changed environment.

Whether the Dr. Jekyll pneumococcus commonly present in the mouths of healthy persons may become transmuted into the Mr. Hyde strain which causes coryza, sinusitis, pharyngitis, laryngitis, tonsillitis, quinsy, pneumonia, pleurisy, heart valve damage (endocarditis), sometimes appendicitis, empyema, meningitis, is not definitely known. It may well be that such transmutation may be favored by the presence in the mouth of neglected dental caries, chronic gingivitis, pyorrhea, and by conditions which interfere with normal ventilation and draining of sinuses or tonsils.

In a characteristic effort to lend dignity to the old fishwife fancy that exposure to cold, wet, draft or sudden change causes or predisposes to disease, some of the old-timers who consider themselves qualified to speak offer the unique concept that under such circumstances a person catches the pneumonia or whatnot from himself—that is, his own pneumococci, always present in the saliva, suddenly turn vicious or virulent, and there the poor geek is!

There is still a vast amount of stuff and nonsense on the subject, but enough of that. I want to give you just two practical suggestions. First, there is good medical authority for the belief that boric acid ear drops. Second, quinine to pneumococcus growth—boric acid, mouthwash, boric acid nasal spray, boric acid eye drops, boric acid ear drops. Second, quinine seems to be the best pneumococcal remedy or at least the best home remedy one can use for acute illness of the nature of pneumonia, influenza, grip, coryza, bronchitis, sore throat, etc.—as prophylactic I suggest one grain of quinine sulphate three times a day. As a remedy, when you are coming down with an attack—two grains every four hours.

9 Persons Die In Accidents Over Weekend

Ilan Hansen, Orville Evenson, and Dennis Olson, all of the town of Winchester.

The accident at Omro in which George Lenz was fatally injured occurred at 1:30 yesterday morning on Highway 116 one-fourth mile west of Omro, as Lenz and two companions were returning to Omro from a dance at Eureka. Their car, which was driven by Alvin Hoppe, 25, Omro, ran off the road while he was negotiating a curve, hitting a tree.

Lenz, who was riding in the back seat, received a skull fracture from which he died about two hours later. Hoppe was seriously injured, remaining unconscious about 12 hours, authorities at Mercy hospital Oshkosh, announced. The third companion, Robert Davis, 24, Pickett, escaped with minor bruises. Davis told police he thought Hoppe had fallen asleep while driving.

An inquest in this accident will be held, the coroner announced.

Mrs. Hubert Annen, 49, 3138 N. Twenty-sixth street, Milwaukee, is confined to Clintonville Community hospital with several broken ribs, torn shoulder ligaments and body bruises suffered when she fell from a car driven by her husband Saturday afternoon on Highway 45 two miles south of Clintonville. Mrs. Annen was thrown out of the front seat of the car when the door flew open while the machine was rounding a curve. The couple and family were returning from Pine Lake when the accident occurred.

Mercedes Manning, 21, 1515 N. Durkee street, was cut on the nose when cars driven by Jim Lueck, 15, 818 E. Circle street, and Mrs. Charles Bender, route 3, Appleton, collided about 1:25 Saturday afternoon. Miss Manning was in the Lueck car which was going east on Roosevelt street and making a turn to go north on Meade street. Mrs. Bender was traveling south on Meade street, according to a report given police.

Cars Damaged
Cars driven by Ernest Coenen, 44, 1605 W. Haskil street, and Andrew Sharp, 74, 710 W. Prospect street, were damaged in a collision on Prospect avenue at 11:30 Sunday morning. Both machines were going west when the collision occurred, police reported.

A truck being driven by Morris Lindley, route 2, Black Creek, on Taylor road, two blocks north of Wisconsin avenue, tipped over about 10 o'clock this morning. Lindley, who was going north, was cut about the face, according to County Traffic Policeman William Glashco.

Introducing Your Mailman

Do you know the mailman on your route? Every day, rain or shine, in summer and in winter, he stops at your home, providing a service that has grown to be essential as electric lights or the telephone. But few of the mailmen's "customers" know his name, or where he lives or what manner of man he is. The Post-Crescent is introducing the carriers to their public so that readers may know the men who serve them so faithfully.

Martin J. O'Brien, Chicago.

George Coghlan, 26, Madison.

Joseph Mertes, Jr., 19, Dotyville.

Malecki and Miss Jachim drowned in Silver Lake, 25 miles west of Kenosha, Wis., Sunday—the youth perishing in a vain attempt to save the girl after she fell out of their rowboat. The accident occurred during a picnic of a Chicago Polish church.

Allen drowned in Lake Michigan Saturday night when a wave swept him off his yawl, the Patsy II, while he and his companions attempted to raise a sail during choppy weather. After the mishap the boat was towed into South Chicago by Freighters William McLaughlin of Superior. Zibung suffered a fatal skull fracture when he struck a rock while diving in the Little Sugar river near Monticello Sunday afternoon. Mertes, a farm youth, drowned Sunday in Lake Denevne, southeast of Fond du Lac. Unable to swim, he jumped from a diving board apparently unaware that it was on the edge of a dropoff. The body was recovered in 35 feet of water.

Coghlan died in a Madison hospital Saturday shortly after his automobile struck a parked car on Madison's west side. Five companions were injured.

Dies of Shock

A young Indian guide's heroic efforts saved three prominent Chicagoans from drowning when their boat overturned in Crawling Stone lake Saturday, but one of the men—Martin J. O'Brien, Cook county public administrator—died of shock after reaching shore.

The guide, 18-year-old Johnny St. Germaine, handed inflated life preserver cushions to the men after the boat rolled over in choppy seas, and then assisted each in turn through one-quarter mile of rough water to the beach.

In the boat with O'Brien and St. Germaine were John Hallihan, Illinois state superintendent of registration and education, and Arthur O'Brien, Governor Horner's personal secretary.

William Yescheck, proprietor of Crawling Stone lodge 14 miles north of Minocqua where the Chicagoans were vacationing, said last night that Arthur O'Brien apparently suffered no ill effects from the immersion but that Hallihan, who was brought ashore in semi-conscious condition, was in bed un-

Lakes was limited, the congressman declared, however, that he was informed ships as long as 400 feet with a 60 foot beam and 30 foot depth could be built and "then be finished somewhere down the line."

Proposals for development of "safety ports" and smelters at the head of the Great Lakes also have been laid before Chairman Land by Senator Wiley (R-Wis.).

The senator advocated construction of torpedo boats, submarine chasers and similar small craft which could be built at the inland ports.

Wiley suggested it would be a doctor's care but in no danger.

O'Brien's body was placed on a train yesterday for Chicago.

Young St. Germaine said he helped Hallihan to shore first at Martin O'Brien's insistence, and then on a return swim through the rough water brought Martin ashore despite his demands that Arthur be taken first.

Martin collapsed half-way to shore and the Indian towed him the rest of the distance.

Fleet Chief Is Capital Visitor

Admiral Richardson Arrives from Hawaii Talks With President

Washington —(AP)— Travelling as secretly as the fleet he commands, Admiral J. O. Richardson arrived unexpectedly today at the navy department from Hawaii, where the United States battle armada is now stationed.

The department did not disclose the presence of the fleet's commander in chief until a day after he reached Washington.

It was announced only that he came here "to confer with officials regarding routine policies for the training of the fleet."

He was scheduled to have lunch with President Roosevelt today and it was considered likely he would talk with Lewis Compton, acting secretary of the navy; Admiral Harold R. Stark, chief of naval operations, and other high officers.

Observers expected that Richardson would discuss with the high command the pressing question of where to keep the fleet, as well as lessons in naval operations which have been learned from the European war.

visible to include in the nation's "great plan of defense" the construction of smelters in Superior, Wis., supplementing the Pittsburgh smelters, so "steel could then be utilized there for the boats that would be built there."

The senator contended utilization of shipyards at Superior, Manitowoc, and other lake ports for immediate construction of small boats similar to those already constructed by Germany and Italy would help make the seaboard impregnable.

"Inland ports located about 1,500 miles from the Atlantic seaboard are 'safety ports,' Wiley said. "In case of any war, shipyards on the coast would be the first object of attack while inland ports would be immune."

"Iron ore comes from the Mesaba range, and it could be used immediately if smelters were built at Superior."

Welfare Department Offers Supply of Eggs

J. H. Kimberly Class A Winner In Sailing Race

Phantom III Noses in Ahead of Sea Gull, Piloted by Kellett

Neenah—J. H. Kimberly skipped his Phantom III to a 1-second victory over Jack Kimberly's Sea Gull, piloted by William Kellett, in the Class A event of the Neenah Nodaway Yacht club sailing races Saturday afternoon on Lake Winnebago.

It was a nip and tuck battle all way around the course, and a brisk wind out of the southeast gave skippers the best races of the present season. All boats were to start, serving to make the race more interesting because of the beat on the second leg.

Although the Phantom III was in the lead for most of the race, Kellett constantly threatened. S. F. Shattuck, skippering his Smilin' Thru, came in third followed by L. C. Stulp's Onaway, but the last craft was disqualified. The 12-mile course was sailed in 1 hour 29 minutes.

The Class E race was as equally interesting with Nick Gilbert taking first place with his Mibs, besting Sawyer of Oshkosh by 15 seconds. Bill Gilbert sailed We Will Too to third place with fourth going to Nevitt of Oshkosh, and fifth to Sage sailing Goly Kell, sixth to Bud Sensenbrenner in Jonipon Too, while Arthur Croxson's You Wait was disqualified.

There was only a single entry in the Class C event, Richard Thickens' Easy Goin', which rounded the course in 1 hour 32 minutes.

Alice Gilbert Wins

Alice Gilbert, sailing Algae, paced 16 other boats in the X-boat class, navigating the 4-mile course in 51 minutes and beating out John Sensenbrenner in Little Moon by three minutes. The other placements were: Hampton Purdy in Katapara, third; DeCourdes, sailing Aloha Oe, fourth; Mimi Mory, skippering Creeping Charley, fifth; Tad and Chuck Shepard, skippering Blue Bill, sixth; Kate Gilbert in Kay Gee, seventh; Ham Craig in Tramp, eighth; Bob Kimberly in Sandpiper, ninth; Jack Renner, skippering Overdue, tenth; L. Dickerson in Shad, eleventh; Mary Shattuck, piloting Wee Wee, twelfth; Betty Neff in Lila, thirteenth; Peter Mahler in Canvas Back, fourteenth; Christine Turner, sailing Jim Cricket, fifthteenth; Alice Bergstrom in Swing It, sixteenth; and J. McNaughton in Lake Fly, seventeenth.

In the C class, Dorothy Ridgeway's Sea Biscuit led the way, beating John Boon's Jolo by 2 minutes 15 seconds, and Russ Spoor dropped out of the race.

Gerry Felton showed his transom to the rest of the National class fleet by sailing his Dun's Esk into first place, defeating Bill Berger in Nell by five seconds. Third place went to Rudy Lotz in Sunflower, and he was followed by Russ Johnson and D. Appert in Blitz Krieg.

Menasha Team Lost Lead in 7th Frame; Twin Bill Canceled

Menasha—The Menasha Eagles lost a 1-point decision to the Oshkosh Shippers, 9 to 8, in a Winnebago league contest Sunday afternoon at the Menasha diamond.

A doubleheader was scheduled, but league sanction hadn't been obtained for the second encounter and the game was canceled.

After leading, 8 to 7, in the sixth frame, the Eagles gave up two runs in the next inning which gave the Oshkosh nine the win. Menasha counted two in the opening stanza, but in the second, Oshkosh sailed ahead with a 4-run spurge. Neither outfit scored until the fifth inning when Menasha gained the lead with a 5-run drive, but Oshkosh bunched a series of hits to score two runs in the fifth, another in the sixth and the winning pair in the seventh.

Gil Grabner, Oshkosh, pitched for the Shippers. Oshkosh outlived the Eagles, 11 to 9.

Jack Snyder, 11, Can Boast About Playing With Net Champions

Neenah—Little Jack Snyder, Neenah, a diminutive but aggressive 11-year-old ball boy at the Doty club of Neenah and Menasha, is the proudest youngster in the Twin Cities as well as the envy of his young friends.

Jack drew more applause and laughter from the spectators at the finals of the twentieth annual Fox River Valley Tennis tournament at the Doty club Sunday than the nation's top-ranking netters.

During the intermission between the singles and doubles match, which was extended to give Frankie Parker, runner-up for the singles title, a rest period, the spunky little ball boy went out on the courts and assisted Henry Prusoff and Gardner Mulloy warm up for the doubles match.

Jack really astonished the spectators with the way he wielded Don McNeill's racket, which was more than half his size and by his accuracy of returning exceptionally lofty lobs. The two national net stars kept the lad racing all over the court, and although Jack was tuckered out, he continued for 10 or 15 minutes.

Joseph Kuborn Is Hurt in Accident

Kimberly—Joseph Kuborn, who resides on a farm on W. Kimberly avenue, received cuts on his lips and face when he fell from a load of hay in a field near his home about 6 o'clock Saturday evening. He slipped off the side and struck a sharp object on the ground.

His son, Joseph, Jr., who was in the field with him notified a farm-land, who helped Mr. Kuborn home, where a local physician was called. He was taken to St. Elizabeth hospital where his condition is reported favorable. Mr. Kuborn is a village trustee and is now serving his seventh two-year term in that office.

Only a diamond will do

There come occasions in the course of life when gratification and happiness are so profound that adequate expression becomes difficult. These are times when the deathless fire of a diamond can convey the emotions that defy speech.

The gems you choose for these spokesmen should be worthy of their mission. You can make sure of this by purchasing them only from a jeweler of unquestioned integrity.

We shall gladly help you in the selection of a stone for any occasion... shall gladly explain the four important qualities which determine the worth of any diamond.

The vogue for brief play clothes which bare one's midriff has met with popular approval. And so have evening gowns which consist of a respectable bra-top and full skirt on tight-fitting waist-band. Good Taste Today

by Emily Post

BRIDE APPEALS

The prejudice against a woman's wearing black at a wedding could not ordinarily go so far as to include a small amount of black lace used as a trimming. Even so, this question becomes a problem as it is described by the bride-to-be in the following letter:

"The dress my maid of honor has set her heart on wearing at the wedding is LOVELY, I admit. It is of pale blue marquisette, and the blue is exactly what we had intended, but I was terribly taken aback when I saw that the dress was trimmed with an edging of fine black lace, around each of the short puffed sleeves, and also around the bottom of the full long skirt. She tells me that the saleswoman at the very smart shop where the dress was bought suggested black lace milts to go with the black trimming. I'm sick about this intrusion of black, because I have always understood that black on a feminine member of the wedding party was bad luck. I know this must be a superstition but one hates deliberately to flaunt an omen of misfortune, no matter how unreasonable this may be. This girl is my only attendant and I know this dress is exactly what she wants for wear on other occasions after the wedding day."

To this I can truthfully answer that while the prejudice against black derives from the sombreness of mourning, which is naturally saddening to the gaiety of a wedding, this could hardly be said of the small amount of transparent edging that you describe. If you LIKE the dress otherwise, then it will, in my opinion, be all right. Of course if the lace were wide or heavy, that would be unsuitable.

Dear Mrs. Post: I have been receiving treatments at a hospital by a young interne and I really believe he has done me lasting good. I have not felt so well in years. This young doctor is going to join a hospital in another city and soon leaves for good. I should like very much to give him something more than the thanks I have already expressed. Could this be a book, and if so, what book, or what else do you suggest?

Answer: Thanking him again is really showing appreciation enough. There is no impropriety in giving him a book if you happen to know of a certain book that he wants. Otherwise, it is always a risk to buy a book because a book that

Skill Was Needed to Make Bid

"The bidding proceeded:
NORTH East South West
2 hearts Pass 5 diamonds Pass
4 no trump Pass 5 spades Pass
6 spades Pass 6 spades Pass

"East opened the club jack and the contract was defeated. The questions at issue are:
"1. Was the bidding correct?
"2. Would the six spade contract probably have been made by the average good player against players of the same rank sitting East and West?
"3. Would the contract probably have been made by an expert player against expert players sitting East and West?"

"D. G. F., Iowa."
1. North bid vigorously, but the sixth spade contract itself was certainly justified.
2. I seriously doubt that the contract would have been fulfilled by an average player.
3. This is a tougher question to answer, for the following reasons:
The club king wins the opening lead and declarer may as well lay down the spade king to see how the wind blows. When he discovers all five missing trumps in West's hand it is obvious that heroic measures will be required to take 12 tricks.
At the second trick declarer should try out the diamond finesse. It loses to West and now, whether or not the contract can be made depends entirely on West's return. For the moment let us suppose that he exits with a club (a heart or a spade would come out the same). Dummy wins while declarer discards a heart. Now it is obvious declarer cannot afford to ruff a diamond in dummy because, even if such a ruff could be negotiated, declarer then would be unable to return to his own hand except by ruffing a club or a heart—and to shorten himself would be fatal. Since at this stage declarer has a losing diamond, the only chance is to play for a squeeze. He cashes dummy's other trump honor, then leads the spade four to his own hand and runs off trumps. With one trump left to play, this position is reached:

NORTH
♠ None
♥ A K 5
♦ A 8
♣ A 4 3
WEST
♠ 8 7 6 2
♥ J 10 8 6

♦ 8 7 6
♣ K 10 9 8 5 2
SOUTH
♠ A K 5 3
♥ A 6
♦ A Q 4
♣ A 7 5

The spade queen draws West's last trump, while dummy discards a club and East a heart. Now the cashing of the ace and king of hearts squeezes East mercilessly. On the latter trick, if he lets go a diamond, declarer's three diamonds become good; if East discards the club queen dummy's club four is high and declarer needs only the ace and queen of diamonds. Unfortunately, this squeeze can be broken up by a very fine defense on West's part. At the point where he is given the diamond king, the immediate return of the diamond ten will prematurely remove declarer's entry and will take all pressure off East.
Whether an expert in the West position would have the vision for this diamond return, or whether an expert declarer would successfully execute the squeeze if that return was not made, are questions that I am not prepared to answer.

Case Records of a Psychologist

By Dr. George W. Crane

Psychologist, Northwestern University

Horse sense seems to be woefully lacking in the manufacture of our modern motor cars, which are glowingly advertised on the basis of their unnecessarily high horse power, when we parents would gladly surrender some of that same horsepower for a few simple safety devices. I'd rather have the $1 gadgets that my garage man put on the rear doors of our car, than an extra 25 horsepower in the motor, and so would most people. A good "consumer survey" would be an eye-opener to many auto manufacturers.

CASE R-113: Bobby J., aged 8, is an attractive little boy.
"Oh, Dr. Crane, I wish you would tell other parents about our tragedy," his mother sobbed.
"Last Sunday we were coming home from Bobby's grandparents. He and his sister Mary were in the back seat.
"We were driving about 40 miles per hour. Bobby and Mary were for I heard her scream as she went out of the car like a shot.

Perhaps you readers may recall my having described how I picked her up and went into a neighboring farmhouse, where I watched her all night to observe any signs of brain hemorrhage and other internal injuries. The back of her head was cut and bleeding, and she kept moaning fitfully all night.

Common Death Traps
Fortunately for us, Judy recovered, and miraculously hasn't a scratch except for a long scar hidden beneath her hair. But little Bobby is not going to recover and constantly other Bobbys and Judys are dying in this fashion.
In fact, the farmer to whose home I carried Judy, told me that two other youngsters had fallen out of automobiles in front of his house during the previous five years. One was killed instantly, while the other died a few days later, mangled terribly.

Why will automobile manufacturers and engineers still turn out beautiful cars that aren't equipped with the simple, "horse sense" safety features to prevent such accidents?
Now I have my car equipped with leather straps to which metal snaps are attached. In the two rear doors I have had eye screws inserted. As soon as our youngsters are in the back, we snap the straps to the doors. It cost only $1.00 at the garage to add this greater safety to our motorcar.

Horse Sense Increases Profits
Many parents, when considering the purchase of a new automobile, will finally select a 2-door instead of the 4-door they really preferred, because they are afraid to leave their youngsters in the back of the latter, lest one of them fall out as Bobby has done.

And many of the so-called safety devices on the doors aren't fool proof. If the automobile manufacturers would go back to a little old-fashioned horse sense, and forget for awhile their frenzy over increased horsepower, we'd have less fatalities on the highways.

If you readers cannot buy automobiles that are safe, go to your garage man and for $1.00 he can at least safeguard your children in the back seat.

Courting Technic Must Be Adapted to Situation

BY DOROTHY DIX

A young man who frankly admits that he has never been successful in his love affairs wants to know how to win a woman. Well, son, there are no set rules for courting. It is a matter of the inspiration of the moment, and the reason that many men fail to get the wives they desire is because they didn't have the right hunch at the right time. They were humble when they should have been masterful. They told home truths when they should have let go all hold on veracity and lied until they were blue in the face. They popped the question in the middle of a meal when their mouths were full of mashed potatoes instead of sentiment. And so their Lady Loves said "No" instead of murmuring "Yes." No pathfinder has ever yet been able to chart out a high road to a woman's heart and put up a signboard that says "Turn to the right," or "Avoid that detour," or "Danger ahead, go slow." Every girl is different from every other girl and must be approached in a different manner. So every suitor has to adapt his technique to the occasion and use the treatment that the particular case seems to indicate, as the doctors say.

Probably the most effective general method of wooing is the caveman style. In her secret soul every woman wants some brutal lover who will be so mad for her that he will knock her down with a club and drag her by the hair of her head to his lair, if that is the only way of getting her.

Every woman wants to be swept off of her feet by some man who will dominate her and marry her in spite of herself, and who will make her believe that he will commit murder upon any other man who comes near her. That is why Clark Gable makes such a bit with the feminine sex. They are seeing on the screen what they would like to happen to them.

So, when you go courting, son, never go humbly. Never chase yourself before a woman if you want her, because no woman can ever resist the temptation to kick the man who is kneeling at her feet, or to refrain from trampling on one who makes a doormat of himself. It is the bold men, the strong men, the arrogant men whom women fall for.

If you beseech a woman to name the wedding day, she may dilly-dally about it and keep putting it off, but if you announce to her that she will marry you on next Thursday or not at all, she may say that she won't be ordered about and that she won't do it, but come Thursday she will be waiting with her wedding veil on, for you, at the church.

Curiously enough, next to battering down the door to a woman's heart and entering and taking possession, the best method of approach is by way of the confessional. If few women can resist the cave-man no more can they turn down the penitent.

There is something about a black sheep that makes them want to take him to their bosoms and make a pet of him. Perhaps it is the maternal in them that makes them want to shelter and protect a poor, weak, helpless creature who can't stand alone.

Perhaps the man's allure for them is the field he offers for woman's eternal mania for reforming things. At any rate, for whatever reasons, the undesirable and the indelible have a fatal attraction for women.

Also, they fall for the romantic. But if you feel that nature didn't fit you to quote poetry, go in heavily for the fifty-fifty partnership marriage stuff. That goes strong with the modern girl for it leads her to believe that you will help her wash the dishes and roll the baby carriage and establish a joint bank account.

These few tips on how to win a girl, son, are worth considering, but if one loves you and I want you, I know old style of courting will go.

The most important part of the preparation of desserts is the serving. To be appetizing, hot desserts should be served really hot and cold desserts cold. It is inexcusable to place a chilled dessert on a hot plate or a warm pudding on a cold dish.

Also, without her noticing it, he will drive other suitors away and finally become her lone last chance. Millions of men wear out women's sales resistance by their persistence and marry girls who swore that they would never marry them, and live happily ever-after.

Of course, all girls like to be flattered and told how beautiful and wonderful they are and tend a willing car to the man who is a glib love-maker.

Also, if you feel that nature didn't fit you to quote poetry, go in heavily for the fifty-fifty partnership marriage stuff. That goes strong with the modern girl for it leads her to believe that you will help her wash the dishes and roll the baby carriage and establish a joint bank account.

Toy Guns Can Be Harmful; Should Lock Up Real Ones

BY ANGELO PATRI

Shooting at a mark is always challenging but strongly so in childhood and youth. Boys are fascinated by shooting games. I dislike seeing a gun of any description in a child's hands because guns are made for just one purpose, killing. With that idea children can have nothing to do, should never have anything to do.

But the shops show the guns, one with rubber-tipped bullets, in other one with a string tied to the projectile. Arrows are also rubber tipped to assure mothers that they are not dangerous. Well, be that as it may, if one of those rubber missiles, or the rubber-tipped arrows, finds a mark on a child's face, he is going to think himself hurt. And he might be right.

I should hate to say that all target practice should be counted out. Many boys become quick and true in their aim, and enjoy their skill in target practice. If one can be sure that the target will be the only mark, and that there will be "hands up" in the game, it might be allowed. But the assurance that the target shall not be of the human variety must be made doubly secure by the watchful presence of the supervisor or teacher.

Out of Sight and Reach
Somehow a gun, or any of its relatives, stimulates a boy to shoot, or pretend to shoot, his companion. Many a simple target practice has ended in a hunt for the robber bandits, which is not so good. My opinion about the whole matter is that guns should be taken seriously and if boys are to be taught to handle them at all they should learn the art under the watchful eye and skilled hand of the expert. And it is not necessary to begin that training with a boy of five. Make it eighteen, and everybody will feel safer and be safer.

There may be occasions when a gun in the house is necessary, or it may be necessary to have it there always. When this is so it must be kept out of sight and reach of children. Don't take that as a matter of course. Don't let long habit make you careless.

Children take quick action, most unexpected action, at times, and we must be on guard whenever there is a gun anywhere in the house. If they have to know about it let them know too, that it is locked away for safety, and that father himself is afraid to have it about. Don't be loud and grave about a gun when there are youngsters about. They dearly love to be big.

And brave too, and a gun has great dramatic possibilities.
Proud But Dangerous
I never went down three long flights of stairs and across a wide play field as fast in my life as I did the morning little Peter brought his father's revolver to school. There were about two thousand little children scattered over the block, and here was Peter proudly showing his friends what he had. "N it's loaded. See?" and he broke open the shining weapon, just as I got to him.
"My, that's a fine gun, Peter. Let me see it!"

He gladly handed it over for my inspection. Father had laid it on top of his dresser and had forgotten to pick it up again as he usually did, and Peter got there first. We can't help having a few lapses of memory because we are human, but we can try mighty hard to remember about guns, big or little, toy or in earnest. They're bad things to have in the family.

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, enclosing a three-cent stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

commented casually. "Not an ounce of fat on you."
"It must be the Melba Toast and grapefruit diet, or maybe the rowing machine in the attic which I never use."

"After all, what is an attic without a rowing machine? And family skeletons?"
"No skeletons," she assured him.
"At least, not Merriner skeletons. Not yet, anyhow."

"Then there's no hope for you. You can't be glamorous without a skeleton or two to rattle. Here, let me help you with those canvases." Unwrapping one painting at a time, she handed it over for his inspection. He held it up in varied lights and squinted critically. She tried to read his reaction from his expression and could not. Fear mounted in her; the certain fear that he would confirm her own opinion.

"Jan," he said, when the last picture was back in its wrappings, "I think you're on the wrong track. You have ability, all right, and an eye for line and color, but I—well, bluntly—I don't think marines are your proper métier."
"But the sea is the only thing I want to paint!" He insisted, tears edging her voice. "Fruit, flowers, trees, houses—no!"
"What about people?"
"I never tried. Always," her voice mounted, "always the sea! It's practically an obsession. I suppose I should hate that vast murderous expanse of brine because it took my father and mother from me, but I don't!"

"Then," he advised after a silence, "do nothing for a time. Let your creative ground lie fallow awhile and let other impressions crystallize. If you have genius, and you may have it lying latent, undeveloped, it's for something else perhaps. Jan! What is . . ."
For she was weeping, the hot tears pushing through her thick lashes. Consternation filled him. She was so fragile-looking, she looked like a hurt child crying out heartbreak and disappointment. "I—I know I'm not a— a genius," she stammered. "I've tried and tried and sometimes I thought I had it, but I didn't have it. It eludes me, like wind. Wanting to do a thing isn't—doing it!"
"Don't I know?" he asked softly. "I guess we're just a couple of frustrated artists, Jan, and misery loves company." He put his arm around her shoulders in a gesture of sympathy and camaraderie. Her hair, fragrant and clean and unperfumed, blew against his chin. Then something, call it an emotional spark, sprang from nowhere to ignite both of them. Trembling, she turned to face him. His arm tightened, caught her close against his hard chest; his lips brushed the tear-drops from her lashes, then found her lips and held them in a kiss. A very tender kiss. He felt her mouth soft and quivering and unresponsive. Unconsciously he picked her up. Again he kissed her, lips importunate. Her arms went up and around his neck and, caught by a sudden rapturous emotion, she returned his kiss. A moment he held her, then let her go, rudely, abruptly.

"Rather Melodramatic!"
Through tears, she saw the dark scowl on his face.
"No use making us both more miserable!" he grated. "Damn it, Jan, I'm sorry this happened. I liked the basis we were on. I can't give you love, romance, marriage, and you're the sort who'd expect them. I can't give anybody any."

Tender Kiss
Because the day was really warm, she had come up here in brief shorts and sun halter. As she knelt down to take a half-dozen carefully-wrapped pictures from the locker she felt Derek's eyes on her. "You have a lovely figure," he

THE HOME GARDENER

by EDWIN H. PERKINS

The picnic period makes us think about ants, which we find in our gardens as well as in the locations where our outings are enjoyed. Some of us find ants troublesome in our home larders as well and consequently should make every effort to rid our gardens and properties of these nuisances.

Killing single ants by crushing under the foot or by scalding with boiling water offers little relief. There is only one sure way to eradicate ant colonies and that is by poisoning the queen. The method is to place a sweet poison syrup to attract the workers. They will consume it and carry it to their queen where all are killed.

Sugar-eating ants can be controlled with a poison made by dissolving one pound of brown sugar in a minimum amount of water, which is then poisoned with an ounce of paris green. Set this around in small trays in the garden where ants travel. Grease eaters can be poisoned by feeding them bits of bacon which have been rubbed with tartar emetic. Both these products are poisonous to human beings and should be handled with extreme care. Seedsmen sell manufactured syrups which accomplish the same result without the attendant danger from home mixing.

Ants sometimes become quite bothersome among the shrubs where they feed on the roots and are the causes for many cases of root rot. Many successes are reported when a hole is punched in the ground alongside the shrubs and then filled with a solution made from one ounce of pyrethrum or rotenone in one gallon of water, then tightly closing the top of the hole. The difficulty with this method is that the solutions used may kill much of the existing root system.

The Strauss heater is available in capacities of 50, 80, 120 and 160 gallons.

Because of improvements in design and insulation, the gas heater handled by the Engel company is surprisingly economical. From the many different types—standard to table top—one can select a heater that will give a measured amount of hot water at a measured cost, or one that will always supply all the hot water a family needs.

The Appleton establishment also offers a coal or wood unit which supplements a coal in the furnace and carries the full load during summer. In the H.H. Quality heaters, distributed by the Morley-Murphy company of Green Bay, there is a heater for every use and budget. A lifetime of satisfactory service is assured.

To have a continuous supply of hot water means the range boiler full of hot water all the time. The easiest and surest way to get hot water constantly is to insulate the boiler with a Johns-Manville Keystone range boiler cover. Put on in 5 minutes, the inexpensive 3-layer jacket saves the cost of fuel ordinarily used in reheating water that has cooled down and also will give the assurance that the heated water will stay hot, ready for use whenever wanted.

Koepke Gains Reputation in Manufacture of Concrete Pipe

The Koepke Construction company has gained a reputation throughout the state in the manufacture of concrete pipe for culverts and sewers.

The firm is equipped to make concrete pipe in various small sizes and large pipe that will meet any requirement. Concrete pipe for culverts and sewers is recognized as the best and most lasting. Records show that concrete pipe installed in 1870 still is in excellent condition. The lower Fox river valley contains approximately 46 miles of concrete sewer pipe in sewerage systems from Oshkosh to Green Bay alone.

The bureau of public roads specifies that permanent pipe be installed under permanent paved highways throughout the country.

Farmers planning to install culverts and sewers are advised to call at the Koepke Construction company before buying pipe. The smaller size of concrete pipe gives sufficient drainage with a small cash outlay.

All materials used in the manufacture of pipe at Koepke is purchased through dealers in the vicinity of Appleton. This eliminates guess work in getting quality material, as established firms of good reputation must stand behind their products.

around door and window frames these joints should be caulked with a suitable plastic compound forced into the cracks, according to Geo. A. Schuessler, 313 N. Richmond street, a man with long experience in this field.

Caulking does for frames what weatherstripping does for movable sash and doors. Mr. Schuessler points out, Mr. Schuessler, who also specializes in metal weatherstripping, has a staff trained in the art of making a house, old or new, absolutely weathertight. His crew is equipped with the special tools needed for expert work.

Caulking and weatherstripping make for a clean, cool home in the summer months and a pleasant easy-to-heat home during the winter. The many complete installations the Schuessler firm have made in Appleton and vicinity have repaid home owners many times over in fuel savings, health protection and solid comfort.

No house is complete without caulking and weatherstripping to guard against the elements. Now, while the weather is mild, is an ideal time to have a home, or any type of building, completely "weatherized." Mr. Schuessler invites requests for estimates on a complete job or separate windows, doors and other openings.

Installations represent one of the best investments a home owner can make for they pay for themselves. In a new home, the work materially reduces the initial outlay for a heating plant and in older homes it appreciably cuts heating costs.

More Goes on at a Horse Show Than Ever Appears In Records of Contests

Horse blankets and lighted horse shoes decorated North Shore Golf club Saturday night at close to 300 members of society gathered there for the first annual horse show ball. In keeping with the theme, a hobby horse race was a feature of the evening's program. The winner was Katherine Smith, daughter of the Mowry Smiths of Neenah.

One of the busiest women at the horse show Sunday was Mrs. John Pinkerton, Menasha, member of the Twin City Emergency society, sponsor of the event. She sold ice cream bars at a red and white cart under a huge red umbrella, and a stream of youngsters kept her busy exchanging bars for nickels.

Scores of photographers, both amateur and professional, had a field day at the show, but probably none took more pictures than W. Thomas McGrath of Wyoming, who snapped about 150. Taking pictures of horses is his specialty. He has already gone to 25 horse shows in all parts of the country this year, but yesterday's was the first, he said, that had perfect weather. Many of his pictures run in national sports magazines. He is now on his way to Wyoming, where he does most of the dude ranch photography in the state.

Although Bill and Dick Kimberly did not ride in the canter or trot of the family class, but appeared in the walk for their first time in horse show competition, they helped their father, Jack Kimberly, and brother Bob win the third place ribbon.

Carla Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carleton Smith, E. Forest avenue, Neenah, annexed two ribbons Sunday in her second appearance in horse show competition.

The crowd watching the pulling contest as well as those within hearing distance derived plenty of chuckles at one driver's verbal plea to his team: "Please, please, don't quit, please, please."

The large entry in the junior horsemanship class necessitated the assistance of George F. Stuart, Thiensville, who was judge of the saddle classes. Bernard Hopper, Detroit, and Mrs. S. Sloan Colt, Tuxedo Park, N. Y., were regular judges for this class.

Something of a side show at the horse show were Miss Frances Whiting's two lively Dalmatian dogs, who were anxious to get into the ring with the horses, especially when Miss Whiting was riding there on her chestnut mare, Sweet Sue. An excellent rider, Miss Whiting is taking a vacation from horses this week, having left this morning on a cruise toward Green Bay and beyond with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Whiting, E. Forest avenue, Neenah, on the Whiting boat.

The pulling contest between sturdy farm horses in the morning at tracted much more attention than the saddle horses being shown in the ring at the same time. Even Ernst Mahler, Neenah, whose saddle horses and hunters were some of the finest in the show, spent much of his time in the morning with the farm horses, watching the contests and taking pictures.

For William Johnson, Smith street, Neenah, the show had a special interest. One of the few blacksmiths left in this machine age, he shoes the Kimberly and Mahler horses. His son, Arden Johnson, chauffeur and mechanic for John Sensenbrenner, Brighton beach, typical of his generation, was at the show too, but not because, like his father, he likes horses. "I'd be interested in them," he said.

One of the prettiest sights of the show, and one rarely seen in this section of the state, was furnished by three members of the Milwaukee Hunt club, who wore red coats—called pink in horse circles, but very bright red nevertheless—when they galloped over the outside course as a hunt team.

Handrich Family to Hold Reunion Sunday

Reunion—The Handrich reunion will be held at White Lake Sunday, July 14. The speaker will be the Rev. W. E. Pankow of New London. Albert Handrich is president of the group.

Raymond Behnke, Jr., of Milwaukee is spending several weeks with his grandmother, Mrs. Viola Casey.

Ellen Wheeler has returned from Chicago where she has spent the last few weeks with relatives.

Miss Alice Combs, who is studying nursing at Mercy hospital in Oshkosh, is spending her three weeks' vacation with her mother, Mrs. Pearl Combs.

A daughter was born July 1 at Waupaca to Mr. and Mrs. Leland Crushinski.

Miss Gala Mae Doman left Wednesday for Evanston, Ill., where she will spend the remainder of the summer.

Law Sets Quota on Number of Children America Can Rescue

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER

Washington — The question of aid for the Allies—or rather for the one survivor, Great Britain—has taken a strange and poignant turn. England stands under the shadow of an attack which Germany threatens to make the most devastating in all history. Men and women in England are ready for it. Friends are saying their final goodbyes to each other. They are making ready to fight until death lays them down. But they want to spare their children. That is all they ask. They ask not that their own lives be spared—only those of their children.

It is not enough to get the children out of London. All England will be under the rain of German bombs, perhaps before many days have passed. The children must be taken out of England if they are to be safe. Bombs do not respect childhood.

So England is trying to ship her children to Canada and the United States. Canada can take about 20,000. It is hoped that about 50,000 can be placed in the United States. Many offers to take the English children have been made by Americans. A number of institutions with large dormitory facilities are willing to open their doors as an act of mercy.

But there's a law. We have a law. The law will allow 6572 children of English birth to come into the United States each month. The law will allow 65,720 to come in during the next 12 months. But the law says, that no more than 10 per cent of the allowable number may enter in any given month.

So the law will let in 6572 children this month. If the rest of the children are caught under the German bombs that will be just too bad for the children. The majesty of the law, you must understand, is not to be trifled with.

Then why has not the administration asked congress to change the law? Is there any member of the house and senate who would stand up and say that the law should be changed to admit as many of these English children as private American citizens and institutions are willing to take? I would be amazed if a single member objected.

Then why doesn't President Roosevelt, the great humanitarian, the United States committee for doing something? Ask congress, Mr.

headed by Marshal Field with Mrs. Roosevelt as honorary chairman, has been designated by the British government as the official agency for transfer of English refugee children. It has 10,000 individuals and 500 institutions ready now to take English children. Under Winthrop Aldrich a fund of $5,000,000 is being raised to finance the movement of children whose parents have no means.

Secretary Hull has cut the red tape in one small respect. American consuls in England must okay the departure of every child. Ordinarily sworn papers must be sent from the United States attesting that the child will not become a public charge. Now you can get action by cable if your banker also cables information that you are financially responsible. Then you can get your child without waiting for the slow mails. In bureaucratic circles this is regarded as a vast concession to the emergency. You can wire instead of writing. They've managed to stretch the law that much!

So everything is moving except that the law steps in and says only 6572 children a month. Not one more child shall be allowed to escape the jaws of death until the first of the month! Not one more child unless the law is changed. Well, what are we waiting for?

thing, least of all myself. I wish you'd forget I kissed you."

She shoved her hair back of her ears and managed a very small ghost of a smile. "I have a poor memory," she said. A gust of anger swept her. "Aren't you being rather silly, Derek? Rather melodramatic? I didn't inquire whether your intentions were honorable or not, you — you egotist! Don't you think I've been kissed before?" The shrill sound of her voice irritated her ears. "It — it was just one of those things that happen sometimes. You were sorry for me—I was sorry for you — oh, Derek, for goodness' sake, stop scowling and leave me alone!"

At the edge of the trap door he paused to look back at her queerly, uncertainly. Then from below Lance called. "Don't lie to me, Jan! Did he hurt you in some way? Did he? Answer me!"

"He only agreed with me that my painting is no good," she confessed wearily. "And then I went feminine and — and cried. That's all."

His strange, beautiful eyes bored into her. "That's all you intend to tell me, at least," he amended. "Jan, are you falling in love with the man? Are you?"

"Of course not, silly."

"You never were a good prevaricator," he frowned. "You don't know who he is. Nothing about him. An honest man is not so reluctant about himself, Jan. I won't see you hurt. Tell him to go. Tell him to leave our house. Right now. If you don't tell him, I will. I mean it, Jan."

TONIGHT'S GAMES

Sheboygan at Appleton.
Green Bay at Rapids.
Fondy at La Crosse.

After hanging up a questionable record of four straight losses Saturday night when they bowed to Fond du Lac, 4 to 2, the Appleton Papermakers broke the streak Sunday afternoon with a 4 to 2 win in the first game. The opponent was Fond du Lac.

In the nightcap Sunday, a seven inning affair by agreement, Appleton melted under the heat and seven errors and lost, 13 to 3. It was a ball game, however, until the sixth and seventh. Russell Greens, the famous Appleton castoff, gave Appleton three hits.

Sunday, until the blowup in the sixth, the Papermakers looked like a much improved ball team. Al Standaert was back in center field for the first time in ten days, Dancsak was back in left and Glenn Johnson was in right replacing John Crvach. The latter had spent three miserable days in Appleton discovering that while it may be a Class D league in name, the Wisconsin circuit is playing "hopped up" ball of a B rating.

Announcement also was yesterday that the Papermakers will have a new second baseman for a tryout tonight or tomorrow. He is Ervin Oberlander and has played Class B and D ball.

Tonight Appleton will open a series with Joe Hauser and the Sheboygan Indians. Game time will be 8:15.

The Sunday games, played under a broiling sun, had the Papermakers looking very good in winning the opener, 4 to 2, and very bad in losing the seven inning second game, 13 to 3.

In the first game, Bob LaGrow, who gave Fond du Lac three hits the last time he faced it, was opposed by Butch Hoffmann. And while Robert wasn't in such good form and was staggering in almost every inning, he managed to weather the storm and cop although Fond du Lac out-hit Appleton nine to seven.

Fifteen men left stranded on the bases tells the story of why Fond du Lac didn't win. Appleton had six left stranded. LaGrow fanned ten batters and Hoffmann three while Hoffmann walked four and LaGrow five. Four times two Fondy runners were left with the final out and on two occasions the side was retired with the bags loaded.

Fond du Lac scored a single run in the first inning with Dux crossing the plate. Two singles and a walk accounted for the marker. Appleton counted twice in the third heat. Aronson opened with a walk. Hoffcken singled through second to center and Glen went to third. Hoffcken pilfered second base and then Malewicz came up and blasted a single to center and the runners crossed the rubber.

Fondy Ties Score
The fifth saw Fond du Lac tie up the ball game. Monahan sent a long fly to right and it rolled under the canvas for three bases. He tallied on Metz's double to left.

The Papermakers put the game away in the seventh inning. Standaert opened with a walk but was out on a fielder's choice which saw Aronson reach first. Hoffcken came through with a single but LaGrow lofted to right. Malattia rolled a sharp one to Monahan at first but he couldn't reach the base ahead of Malattia. What was more, he tossed late to Pitcher Hoffmann, attempting to cover the bag, and Hoffmann dropped the ball while Aronson legged it home and Hoffcken went to third. Malewicz followed with his second hit of the game and Hoffcken denied the rubber.

The game also saw Monahan get four hits in four times at bat for Fond du Lac. Hoffcken got two for two and Malewicz two for four for Appleton.

Second Game Is Bad

In the second game, the bottom fell out of the Appleton defense and lady luck aided the rout by giving Fond du Lac a couple hits down the third base line by a matter of one and two feet. But of course the seven errors turned in by the club hurt most.

Steve Tomich opposed Russell Greens and while Steve was touched for 14 hits, the side would have been retired a couple times had not the Papermakers treated him so shabbily and dumped him into trouble. Hawk bobbled two at short while Malewicz, Chell, Standaert,

The Saturday night game saw John Van Cuyk, Kimberly rookie start and finish his first game this season. And despite the fact he lost it by a 4 to 2 score it was a choice bit of entertainment with the Papermakers dangerous down to the final out.

Van Cuyk allowed nine hits, the trouble coming from the fact four were for extra bases. Two were triples and two were doubles. Both of the triples might have been left to at least doubles and even singles. Van Cuyk fanned six batters retiring the side on strikeouts in the fourth. He walked only two batters but was a little careless about men on the bases. However, he had the satisfaction of nailing one of the thieves at third base in the eighth. Hank "Grey Flag" Bytner opposed him. Bytner, who had his ears pinned back often in earlier games and who was tagged for ten hits in seven frames by Appleton in the last meeting of the teams, turned up with a torn right sleeve on his shirt that flapped in the breeze with every pitch. Appleton protested to the umpires a half dozen times to no avail. It was obvious that the flag was there for whatever advantage it might have given him. His other sleeve was nicely trimmed off at the elbow. As a matter of fact the torn sleeve was not in tatters. It was the handiwork of a good pair of shears.

Dancsak Homers

Bytner gave up six hits, three to Boss Dancsak and one of those a homer. He fanned six batters and walked four.

Fondy scored two in the second frame. Dougherty drew a walk and Metz was next. He lifted a high fly to right field but Crvach played it poorly and ran past it when it landed and Metz had a triple and Fond du Lac a run. Metz scored on Opperman's single to center.

Appleton got a run back in the home half the second when Dancsak smacked the first pitch to left center for a homer and a pair of bathing trunks. The said trunks went to the first Appleton batter to get a hit on the first pitch. They were offered by a fan who doesn't like to see the boys pass up that first pitch and, frankly, he figured he'd still have the trunks come September.

Opperman Runs Down
Metz's single and Opperman's double gave Fondy a run in the fifth. The Panthers might have gotten another had not Opperman forgotten how many were out and stroled around third toward the plate after Bytner's roller. A surprised Appleton team ran down a surprised Mr. Opperman between third and home.

The first of the seventh saw Opperman single and score on Wang's triple. The latter lofted high to right and center and Dancsak and Millimaki, the latter playing right field, started for it. Millimaki attempted to make the catch under a full head of steam but couldn't turn the trick and the ball bounded away.

Appleton got its final marker in the last of the seventh. Millimaki punched a single to right, went to second when Van Cuyk bunted and the pitcher threw high trying to nail Millimaki at second. Malattia hoisted a high one to right and Malewicz rolled to short with Foth bobbling as Millimaki counted. The next two batters were outs.

BAYS MAULED

LaCrosse — LaCrosse pounded three Green Bay pitchers for 13 hits and made use of 13 walks for a 14-3 Wisconsin State League victory over the last place club here Saturday afternoon. Merv Henley won his eighth long victory, going all the way for the winners. Satter homered for the losers, while Hansch had a single, double, triple in five trips to pace LaCrosse.

RAPIDS BEAT INDIANS

Wisconsin Rapids — The Wisconsin Rapids White Sox converted 12 hits into nine runs to defeat the Sheboygan Indians, 9 to 4, in a Wisconsin State League game here Saturday afternoon. The Rapids Sox opened with a four run spurge in the first inning, featuring a circuit clout by centerfielder Lynn Everson with two aboard.

The Indians also got 12 hits, but only one of them an extra base blow.

300 Harness Horses at Grand Circuit Meeting

Toledo, Ohio —(AP)—Sulkies whirl at Fort Miami track tonight opening a grand circuit meeting in which 300 fancy harness horses will race for some $30,000 in prizes.

Great names among horseflesh appear on the first program. The $3,000 first division trot has as its favorite the famed Greyhound, big gray gelding owned by E. J. Baker.

Challenging the gray to a real duel of speed is Dale Hanover with a record of 1:52 1/2 and driven by Dr. H. M. Marshall, the nation's number one reinsman.

Milwaukee Chiefs Add End, Back to Roster

Milwaukee —(AP)—Coach Tiny Caheon of the Milwaukee Chiefs, new member of the American professional football league, announced today the signing of Sherman Barnes, Baylor university end, and Dave Strong, University of Michigan back.

Brews Lose Two Games to Hens By 5-4 and 4-3

Blaeholder Is Losing Pitcher; Blues Will Meet All-Star Squad

Toledo, O. —(AP)—The Toledo Mud Hens, occupants of the American association cellar, edged out Milwaukee in both games of a twin bill yesterday, 5-4 and 4-3.

The Hens took the opener in 10 innings when Hal Spindel snapped a 4-all deadlock by doubling Milt Byrnes home with the deciding tally. George Blaeholder, who had won five straight, was charged with the loss.

Score by innings:
Milwaukee 100 002 100 0-4 9 0
Toledo 011 100 100 1-5 13 3
(10 innings)
Blaeholder and Hankins; Marcum and Spindel.
(second game)
Milwaukee 012 000 0-3 8 1
Toledo 020 020 x-4 9 1
Jungels, Kline (6) and Garbark; Wirkkala, McDougal (6) and Payton.

The Kansas City Blues qualified as the team to meet the All-Stars collected from the other seven clubs July 17 by taking over first place Saturday and holding onto it Sunday with a double victory. The game will be played in the Blues' own Ruppert stadium.

The defending champions began their third eastern trip of the season by sweeping a three-game series with Columbus, copping a doubleheader yesterday, 10 to 0 and 7 to 5.

Minneapolis, vainly hoping for a chance to move back into the top berth, overlooked Indianapolis in both ends of a twin bill, 5 to 4 in 10 innings and 4 to 3.

Louisville and St. Paul broke even. The Colonels breezed to a 2-0 victory in the first engagement on Wes Flowers' three-hit pitching. He knocked in the winning run in the fifth with a single after the bases had been loaded. The second out broke loose with a four-run spurge for a 6 to 2 decision.

Washington Out Of Touch With Public Opinion

New Deal Has Refused To Be Realistic About Nomination of Willkie

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington—It has often been said that every now and then Washington gets out of touch with public opinion and completely misjudges the temper of the people. Such a phenomenon exists right now, the atmosphere here has been so long a part of the New Dealism—the concept that only one man in America could possibly be popular and that anybody who didn't believe this must be a Tory or a reactionary—that it is interesting to observe the reaction here to the nomination of Wendell Willkie for the presidency.

For several days now the inner New Deal circle and its left-wing spokesmen have been trying to spread the idea that the Willkie nomination was wholly an artificial affair or that the delegates in Philadelphia were deceived by propaganda or that the galleries were packed.

But even the radical weekly, "The Nation," sometimes referred to as the New Deal's guide book, in this week's issue speaks of the "bosses of the party" being deviated by a "genuinely popular revolt." It adds: "The high-pressure publicity campaign put on for Willkie and the sums no doubt spent behind the scenes to win him the nomination would not have been effective if utility men were still synonymous with Insull, as in the thirties. In Willkie, the Republicans have a candidate who comes close to matching Mr. Roosevelt in personal affability and vigor. In a real sense Willkie was drafted. The party bosses did not want him and Wall Street did, but he was picked despite his connections rather than because of them."

May Mean Defeat
It is most interesting to analyze why the New Dealers here have refused to be realistic about the Willkie nomination than to examine the fallacious premise on which they have begun to launch their campaign. It is a psychological factor that egotism and a self-centered personality ignores the virtues of others. So it is with a political group or faction led by those who have wielded power for a considerable length of time. The mere fact that denunciation and invective have succeeded in belittling all opponents in the past is no basis for the assumption—to use Harry Hopkins' famous phrase—that "the people are too damn dumb to understand anyway." Such tactics may result in the worst defeat next autumn that the Democratic candidates have experienced in many years.

For it certainly will arouse every Willkie enthusiast in the country to take off his coat and go to work spontaneously on his neighbors and friends if only to prove to the New Dealers by votes next autumn that the messages to delegates at the Republican National convention of 1940 represented the popular will. The theory that 15,000 persons could be hand-picked out of the mass of people who live in Philadelphia and told how to cheer and when to cheer at a convention may seem to the New Dealers an easy thing to tell their cohorts, but it is not an easy point to get over to the millions of persons who have been cheering in the movies this past week whenever the picture of Willkie has come on the screen. The remarkable demonstration for Willkie as unannounced he entered a moving picture house in New York seating 6,000 is something not readily dismissed as artificial.

Strong With People

Somewhat or another a candidate must be strong with the people or else "the nation" would not be urging Roosevelt for a third term on the ground that "no other Democrat can hope to win the election." But if the New Dealers are out of touch with public opinion, it is also true that some Republicans here in Washington equally are living in a past and bygone day. The frequently-recurring cry that "our boys must not be sent to fight on European soil" sounds hollow in the face of the fact that France has been conquered and movements of land armies have been reduced to a small area where there are plenty of soldiers, but not enough airplanes.

President Roosevelt has shown himself lately a keener judge of public sentiment on foreign issues than on domestic policies. He is watching the Republicans in congress to see if they will become a "peace-at-any-price" party. If he is a candidate for a third term, he will try to drive a wedge between the realistic Willkie view on international affairs and that of the members of his party. This is justified strategy, especially since Hitler has already come to the political rescue of the president by sending a note publicly refusing to recognize the Monroe doctrine or even to understand its historic basis. Mr. Roosevelt needs only to remind the country that the senate by a vote of 76 to 0 and the house of representatives by a vote of 380 to 8 reaffirmed the Monroe doctrine within the last 30 days.

Practical Question
The practical question, of course, is not whether we are "to send our boys to Europe," but whether we are to defend the Monroe doctrine. Maybe Herr Hitler will furnish the pretext for a crisis by some blunder in the western hemisphere, but otherwise there will be no campaign issue made out of America's attitude toward war unless the Republican "isolationists" and their brethren in certain Democratic quarters on Capitol Hill furnish one through a third party.

The country is far more interested now in national defense preparations than in mud-slinging and wishes to learn which of the two candidates will assure a strong enough army, navy and air force at the earliest possible moment so as to keep war from coming to our shores. And insure that national defense problem is the question of organizing and unifying America by getting rid of class warfare—the constant charges and countercharges impugning the motives of honest citizens—and by removing the smokescreen of "social gains" that hide the inefficiencies of the national defense mechanism.

Leo Sievers Is Given Permit to Build Garage

Leo G. Sievers, 912 W. Winnebago street, Saturday received a permit to build a private garage, 20 by 24 feet in size. Cost of the garage is estimated at $125.
A permit to remodel his house was given to Oscar Kunitz, 114 W. Washington street. Cost of the work will be about $25. John Kippenhan, 1315 S. Mason street, was granted permission to build a garage, 12 by 20 feet in size at an approximate cost of $100.

Today and Tomorrow

BY WALTER LIPPMANN

America and the Battle of Britain

The examination of Messrs. Stimson and Knox brought out the fact that there are many senators who are chiefly concerned to make certain that, whatever happens in the Battle of Britain the United States shall have nothing to say about the disposition of the British fleet. The same statesmen are voting billions upon billions to construct another American fleet. So presumably they realize that the control of the Atlantic Ocean against aggression from Europe is vital to the defense of America. Presumably they realize that though they vote billions for another fleet, it will take three or four years to construct the fleet. Yet because Col. Stimson and Col. Knox have wanted to take measures to prevent the British fleet and British shipyards from being captured and used to give the Axis immediate control of the Atlantic Ocean, these senators treated them as dangerous men.

They were not satisfied with assurances that nobody is thinking of sending an American army to fight in Europe. Perhaps they realized how impossible this is. For even a child ought to be able to see that no army of any kind, British much less American, can now be landed in Europe. Their whole preoccupation, their sole concern, seemed to be to make sure that nothing will be done to prevent any part of British sea power—warships, shipyards and naval bases—from being incorporated into the naval forces of the German-Italian-Japanese combination. They were not merely cautious and skeptical as to whether effective measures can now be taken to guarantee this country against this eventuality. They are opposed in principle, in the name of international law, and as a means of safeguarding the American peace, against any move of any kind which might conserve British sea power for the defense of this hemisphere.

Their Attitude Seems To Be Contradictory

Apparently these senators would feel safer if the British fleet were surrendered to Hitler than if some part of it, which was not sunk or scuttled, were induced to take refuge in this hemisphere. That is not what they said. But is not that what their position come down to? What they build another American fleet—in four years. But they do both in the Atlantic and the Pacific: to that these gentlemen are presumably prepared to accommodate themselves by arming this country as fast as possible and at the same time by seeking to appease Japan in the Far East and the Axis in South America and elsewhere. They have not, I believe, faced the possibility, which in the light of France's tragic experience is now a probability, that a defeated Britain would fall into the hands of men prepared, a few by choice and others by necessity, to act as the vassals and allies of the Axis and its Japanese partner. But having seen the French fleet fighting the British fleet the day after the Senegalese quizzed Col. Stimson, we can no longer afford not to grasp the fact that the total defeat of Britain would very probably mean that the British interest in Europe, in South America and in the Far East would be turned around and turned against us. And what would be the condition of Canada if in London there were a government which advised the King to require all British subjects to conform to the policy of the Berlin-Rome-Tokyo combination?

And if this happens, and for the moment the policy of influential senators seems to be to prevent ourselves from doing anything to prevent it from happening, how much time does Senator Walsh think we shall be allowed in order to build another fleet? Is it not evident that to persist in the policy of absolute passivity and inaction and indifference is to take the greatest gamble ever taken with the security of America?
